RUSSIA BEGINS TRYING 14 FOES OF RED REGIME

Confessed Plotters Face Death Penalty in Hall of Nobles.

CASE MAY PARALLEL RAMZIN CONVICTION

Woman Sits Among Judges as Prosecutor Accuses Prominent Victims.

Moscow, March 1.—The spectacular trial of fourteen Menshevists, confessed interventionist plotters against the Soviet state, began this evening in the Hall of Nobles.

For the second time within recent months the government took stern measures for the elimination of men long trusted in high administrative posts. In a setting in the spacious Hall of Nobles, made familiar by the first interventionist trial last autumn, the prosecution of the defendants—all economists, bankers or officials serving the government—began at 6:20 p. m.

Nicholas Krylenko, pugnacious little prosecutor, was on hand with documents which he intimated would link former German government authorities, as well as the French, with this second alleged plot to wage an interventionist war against Soviet Russia.

Light Floods Hall.

Again there were the great arc lights flooding the court with brilliant illumination; the radio amplifiers and microphones carrying the testimony to the four corners of the Soviet Union; the motion picture cameras recording the proceedings for the avid public, eager to see and hear the tales these men, defending their lives, will tell of intrigue and international plots.

A woman, Alexandra Artynkhina, sat among the judges on the platform at the front of the great hall—a hall where, incidentally, nobles and fine ladies once danced in the days of the czar. She wore a crimson kerchief headdress instead of a hat. The chief judge, Nicholas Savernik, handsome, his round face stern beneath his gleaming, shaved head, opened the trial. V. P. Antonov-Saratovsky, who sat in the previous interventionist trial of eight engineers, was the third judge.

The hall was packed with the so-called "shock brigade" workers. They are specially privileged men and women who are used in organizing factories and in special jobs anywhere in the country.

Ramzin to Be Called.

Prosecutor Krylenko said he intended to call Prof. Leonid Ramzin and Victor Karichev, two of the eight engineers convicted in the first trial and now serving prison terms. They were implicated in the Menshevist intervention plot, as well, the indictments showed, and will be asked to describe how the Menshevists' movement was financed.

The indictment asserted that the defendants were subsidized by the Paris White Russian organization and the German Socialists, through the Berlin Menshevik organization. The fourteen men are specifically charged with engaging in sabotage in an effort to weaken the country and make the "interventionist war" easily

$1,400,000,000 Asked To Finance Treasury

Mellon Plans to Raise Huge Sum at Government's Lowest Interest Rates for Spring Program; $1,100,000,000 Notes to Be Retired.

(Associated Press.)

Plans for raising $1,400,000,000 for the Treasury's spring financing program were announced yesterday by Secretary Mellon. The money will be used to retire $1,100,000,000 of Treasury notes. The remainder presumably will go toward loans on war veterans' certificates.

It will be raised through issuance of bonds and certificates of indebtedness at the lowest rate the Government ever paid on a major financing plan.

Mr. Mellon said issues of $500,000,000 in twelve-year 3⅛ per cent bonds, $300,000,000 in six-month 1½ per cent Treasury certificates of indebtedness and $600,000,000 in one-year 2 per cent certificates, dated and bearing interest from March 16, would be sold at par.

While the Secretary made no reference to loans on veterans' certificates, provision was made for raising $300,000,000 in new money, apparently to have funds on hand for that purpose. It is to be borrowed at the lowest rate the Treasury ever paid, only 1½ per cent. War veterans pay 4½ per cent interest on their loans.

The Treasury also has to meet about $30,000,000 in interest on the public debt, which becomes due on March 15. The bond and certificate issues, together with the first quarter's installment of tax on 4930 incomes, due on March 15, is expected to provide funds for the immediate needs of the Treasury.

Officials expect, however, that income tax payments this month will drop below those of the first quarter last year, when they aggregated $628,000,000. Treasury experts have estimated that despite the 1 per cent greater tax, which must be paid on normal incomes this year, the receipts will total little more than $500,000,000.

The Government already has a $326,000,000 deficit, which may be temporarily wiped out the latter part of this month, due to income tax receipts, but which is expected by Sec-

NAVAL ACCORD IS REACHED BY THREE POWERS

Britain, France and Italy Agree on Limitation Up to 1936.

PROBLEM OF PARITY KEPT IN BACKGROUND

Text to Be Sent to Affected Governments at Once, Including U. S.

Paris, March 1 (A.P.).—An agreement on limitation of naval armaments which involves modifications of last year's London naval treaty was concluded in Paris this evening by France, Britain and Italy.

The text of the agreement will be cabled immediately to Washington and Hokyo, as both the United States and Japan were signatories to the London naval pact. It also will be sent to Canada and other British Dominions which participated in the London conference.

foreign and naval ministers of France.

The accord which was reached by Britain and Italy, will be submitted to the respective governments with a recommendation that it be approved.

French Delegates Acquiesce.

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Charles Dumont, French minister of marine, approved the proposition after it was explained to them by Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, and A. V. Alexander, first lord of the British admiralty. They arrived in the French capital this afternoon from Rome, where for the past few days they had been conferring with Italian officials. It is hoped that the agreement will eliminate the danger of a Franco-Italian naval race.

Both Briand and Henderson were joyous tonight in announcing the accord. Then sent an enthusiastic telegram to Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, informing him of the result. They praised Italy's spirit of conciliation and voiced their conviction the tripartite accord would consolidate world peace.

Briand announced that the details of the agreement would be published simultaneously in the countries involved, probably on Wednesday. He condemned newspapers which published alleged texts of the accord, saying all of them were false and added to the difficulties of the negotiations.

Details Are Kept Secret.

The French foreign minister said a sense of courtesy toward the United States made it necessary to keep the details of the matter secret for the present.

"Our accord is the result and crowning of conversations which began immediately after the London Conference and which never really were interrupted."

Henderson said:

"This result means that France, Great Britain and Italy are drawn still closer together in friendship. We can go forward with greater confidence in preparation for an international disarmament conference next year."

The negotiators pointed out that the agreement must have the ratification of the parliaments of the government concerned, including the United States Senate, since it embodies changes from the London Treaty. However, the changes are not believed to affect vitally American and Japanese interests.

Stipulates Definite Strength.

Both Briand and Dumont said they were confident French public opinion would be satisfied when informed of the actual figures in the agreement.

The agreement forms a modus operandi, stimpulating the definite naval strength and building program for France and Italy up to 1936. The adherence of these two countries to the London pact transfors it to a five-party agreement.

The conferees adopted a set of guiding principles, each of which is covered by specific units of tonnage and types of warships. It is quite clear that the old cry of parity, which wrecked all efforts to bring about Franco-Italian accord previously had skillfully been kept out of the picture.

GENERAL BILLS DROPPED OVER SHOALS THREAT

Second Deficiency Act, Ready for Report, to Be Pressed.

VETO DEBATE LIKELY TO CONCLUDE SESSION

Norris Derides 'Engineering' Statement Offered by President.

(Associated Press.)

Congressional leaders yesterday abandoned hope for enactment of any other general legislation before adjournment, in the face of a prospective veto from President Hoover on the Muscle Shoals bill.

The President's statement Saturday, characterizing the Norris measure for Government operation of the Muscle Shoals power and nitrate plant as "a political symbol," was accepted on Capitol Hill as foreshadowing a veto.

With only two and a half days remaining, Republican Leader Watson, in the Senate, conceded it would be next to impossible to secure action on anything controversial.

Press Deficiency Bill.

He will press today for Senate adoption of the $100,000,000 second deficiency bill which Chairman Jones of the appropriations committee is ready to report.

Then, if Mr. Hoover vetoes the Muscle Shoals bill, it will go first to the Senate. The subsequent row over this is expected to consume what time is left of the dying Congress. Leaders believed the veto would be sustained if brought to a vote.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, sponsor of the Muscle Shoals legislation providing for Government operation of the power plant, yesterday chided the President for his failure to announce a decision.

Ridicules Hoover Position.

In reply to Mr. Hoover, the Nebraska senator said:

"The President in his statement says: 'This happens to be an engineering project,' the President being an engineer, it would seem he would have no difficulty in solving the problem, and therefore it is rather surprising to learn from his statement that he is referring the matter to the heads of his departments, none of whom are engineers.

"The great engineer is seeking advice on 'an engineering project' from those who are not engineers, and when those who are not engineers tell the engineer what to do with 'an engineering project' the engineer will know whether to sign or veto the bill.

Seeks Copyright Action.

"It reminds me of the New England country justice who at the close of a law suit said he would take it under advisement for three days at which time he would render judgment for the plaintiff."

Senator Hebert (Republican), of Rhode Island, will renew his effort in the Senate today to obtain action on the Vestal copyright bill. It already has been approved by the House, but with stiff Senate opposition manifest, litle chance for enactment is seen.

A last minute effort for an immigration ban will be attempted today in the House.

Continues Oil Fight.

If the measure proposing to reduce by 90 per cent present immigration quotas gets through the House, friends of the legislation will make a drive for it in the Senate.

Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, has put the Senate on notice he will attempt to get action on his bill restricting foreign oil imports, but no chance for enactment of that legislation is seen in the closing wrangle.

Leaders will devote every effort to obtaining passage of the deficiency appropriation bill. With adoption of this, their worries for the short session will be ended.

NAVY IN PERU FORCES PRESIDENT TO RESIGN; NEW JUNTA IN POWER

Sanchez Cerro Forsakes Reins After Week of Revolts.

DRIVE TO END STRIFE AGAIN IS UNDER WAY

Chief Justice of Supreme Court and Two Aids Placed at Helm.

Lima, Peru, March 1 (A.P.).—The Peruvian navy, following the lead of revolting army garrisons in the north and south, late today forced the resignation of Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro and a new government was set up in a few hours.

The new junta is headed by Ricardo Leoncio Elias, chief justice of the supreme court, as provisional president. Other members are Capt. Alexandro C. Vincens, commander in chief of the Navy, and Col. Manuel Ruiz Bravo, chief of the army general staff.

Immediately the three junta officials moved to open communications with southern rebel forces at Arequipa and northern insurgents in the vicinity of Piura, seeking to end what has been verging on civil war for more than a week.

Today's events followed upon the publication in morning papers of an ultimatum by the navy, which called upon the president to resign and declared that ships loaded with government troops to attack the northern and southern rebels had been held up. It was signed by Capt. Vinces, one of the members of the new junta.

Meeting at Palace.

This afternoon the Sanchez Cerro government decided to invite representatives from all sections of national life to attend a meeting at the government palace at 3 o'clock, and announcement was made that military operations had been suspended pending the outcome of this conference.

When the session opened the presiding officer was Mgr. Mariano Holguin, apostolic administrator and bishop of Arequipa, while attending were the president and his cabinet, high civil, naval and military officials, political leaders, editors and others representative of national life.

Sanchez Cerro announced the resignation of himself and all the cabinet, then retired to the Bolivar Hotel. The conferees remained in session until the new government had been established.

After the retiring president had gone to the Bolivar Hotel crowds gathered in front of the hostelry and cheered him, urging him to come out and speak.

Lima Greatly Excited.

In the meantime Lima was greatly excited, and in nearby Callao, where the first revolt was suppressed February 20, there was an air of tension all day.

Naval vessels kept steam up in the harbor, anchored off the political prison island of San Lorenzo, while army transports which had left yesterday to carry troops southward were halted and also remained off San Lorenzo.

Before it was known that Sanchez Cerro had resigned crowds gathered in front of the Callao Prefecture Building, acclaiming the provisional president and requesting arms to fight the revolutionaries. Loyal forces occupied Fortress Real Felipe and marines from the naval academy remained in the quarters ready for action. After Sanchez Cerro's resignation was announced the tension relaxed somewhat.

The events which forced Sanchez Cerro out required only a little more than a week. The first revolt was at Callao February 20, and was suppressed. On the same day the Arequipa garrison rose up and later trouble broke in the north. The government pianed to fight on both fronts, but the defection of the navy forced Sanchez Cerro to take the only course open.

Six Months' Regime.

Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro had a stormy regime of a little more

Wisconsin Member, First Elected in 1893, Dies at Hotel Here.

Representative Henry Allen Cooper, of Wisconsin, oldest man in Congress, in both age and length of service, died yesterday morning at his apartment in the Washington Hotel.

The 80-year-old Republican Progressive, a Racine attorney, succumbed suddenly from acute indigestion after he had retired late Saturday night, complaining of feeling ill, following a prolonged and heated night session at the House. His wife was at the bedside when the end came.

The stalwart, white-haired and bearded "dean of Congress" had been in poor health since last summer.

PARLEYS RESUMED BY GANDHI, VICEROY

Compromise Is Rejected by Nationalists; New Terms Are Sought.

New Delhi, India, March 1 (A.P.).—Further efforts to settle the complicated political situation in India were renewed today when Mahatma Gandhi and the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, conferred for more than four hours.

Attempts to reconcile the two sides in the dispute received a set back yesterday when the working committee of the all-India Nationalist congress turned down the viceroy's terms for a compromise settlement.

The leader of the Nationalists talked with Lord Irwin twice today. After the first meeting he consulted with his associates of the working committee and then returned for further discussions with the viceroy.

Hope that a settlement might be reached was again raised tonight as the result of today's conferences.

One of the points on which the conversations was said to have almost reached a deadlock was the refusal of Lord Irwin to concede to the Nationalists' demand that they be granted the right to manufacture salt. He also is said to have opposed the boycotting of English goods by Gandhi's followers.

The Reuters correspondent was authoritatively informed tonight that the negotiations had "taken a turn for the better." It was stated unofficially the congress executive committee, generally speaking, was in

HULL ADDS PROTEST ON PARTY WET MOVE

Further Objection Offered to Planned Commitment of Democrats.

(Associated Press.)

New protests were voiced yesterday from Democratic congressional leaders against the reported movement to commit the Democratic national committee at its meeting here this week to an antiprohibition stand.

There was every indication last night that this subject was due for an airing, at least, at the party gathering.

Representative Hull, of Tennessee, former Democratic national chairman, issued a statement asserting the national committee is without authority to prescribe issues and that if the meeting attempted such action "it would be in order for the Democratic national convention next year to be dispensed with."

With Southern Democrats particularly aroused, and both wets and drys in Congress opposed to action at this time on the prohibition controversy, Chairman Raskob will come here early this week for preliminary conferences looking to formulation of a satisfactory program.

Mr. Raskob has been reported as ready to support a resolution recommending to the Democratic national prohibition. The irate Democratic leaders in Congress, who feel this is no time for the party to be dividing on such a controversy, will present their views to the committee chairman before Thursday's meeting.

Mr. Hull, who will represent Tennessee at the gathering, urged in his statement that the committee "gird itself for the patriotic task of promoting unity and harmony among Democrats everywhere, to the end that this great historic organization may next year be fully equipped and prepared to assume these manifold and similar outstanding responsibilities of leadership and service to the Nation."

A gathering of the party's national leaders is in prospect. Friends of Alfred E. Smith, 1928 presidential candidate, expect him to attend, together with Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, his running mate.

Many of the Democratic congressional leaders will be present as the representatives of their States, some with proxies of their national committeemen and others as the committeemen.

Mr. Hull advocated that the Democrats "conduct a crusade for a new

Stampede Begun By Gold Discovery

Northern British Columbia Prospector Makes Rich Strike.

Vancouver, B. C., March 1 (A.P.).—A promising gold strike between Stoddart and Seymour Creek, about 150 miles north of Vancouver, today was reported to have caused a rush for claims similar to an old-time stampede.

Fred Guder, a prospector, is said to have discovered a gold quartz ledge on a mountain above the timber line between the two creeks, which are tributary to Kitchener Creek, flowing into Big Creek, 45 miles from Carmacks.

The ore brought out by Guder was said to assay $80 to $360 per ton, free milling, and to carry considerable value in solver. The stampede to the scene of the strike is being made in extreme winter temperatures.

1 DEAD, 3 INJURED BADLY IN CRASHES

Man Hit by Auto Is Killed Instantly; Equestion Severely Hurt.

One man was killed and several persons were injured, three seriously, in automobile accidents in Washington and its environs yesterday.

Harry Garner, 21-year-old farmer, of Route 1, Marlboro, Md., was instantly killed early yesterday when he was run down by an automobile, as he was walking along the Marlboro Pike. His body is at an undertaking establishment, where an inquest will be held tonight at 8 o'clock.

Garner and Mitchell Moran, 22 years old, also of Route 1, were together when an automobile driven, police said, by Ignatius M. Mayhew, of Marlboro, struck him. Mayhew has not been arrested, according to Deputy Sheriff L. E. Dutrow, who investigated the case.

Frank M. Heath, nationally known equestrian who rode through 48 States on horseback, was injured last night when struck by an automobile on Sligo avenue, Silver Spring. Heath is in Walter Reed Hospital suffering from a fractured nose and a possible fracture of the skull.

He was knocked down by an automobile driven by T. S. Gibson, of 2315 First street northwest, as he was crossing Sligo avenue, according to police reports. He was brought to

Young Woman Injured In Accident at Bridge

Injured in an accident on the railroad bridge at Hyattsville, Md., Violet Weller, 31, of C street near First street northeast, was brought to Casualty Hospital yesterday. Physicians said that her condition was "undetermined" although she did not appear to have any broken bones.

Doctors fear she may have internal injuries and she is being kept in the hospital pending a definite diagnosis.

FOUR ARE QUIZZED IN VICE PROBE DEATH

New York Police Puzzled as Efforts to Link Any Suspect Fail.

With the noose murder of beautiful Vivian Gordon spurring 8,500 policemen into every known haunt of New York City's underworld until the morning hours yesterday in its vice investigation, police officials there concentrated mainly on four persons linked with the affair without any apparent success at nailing the crime on any suspect.

In the four appearing before Police Commissioner Mulrooney was the victim's divorced husband, John C. Bischoff, business manager of the industries at the District Reformatory in Lorton, Va., who maintains an apartment at Sixteenth and R streets northwest here.

While scant information emanated from the closely guarded offices of the police commissioner, Bischoff was understood to have been questioned about his knowledge of the woman's past.

"I'll tell plenty," Bischoff promised.

He had appeared before the police inquisitors voluntarily, it was indicated, following the reported discovery of a letter to him in the handwriting of the former wife in which she had warned him that she intended to tell the Seabury vice investigating body about her "frame-up" in being "railroaded" to the Bedford (N. Y.) Reformatory in 1923 on an immortality charge to a sentence of two and one-half years.

Police said that the woman in the letter, postmarked Brooklyn, and dated February 19, had promised to get even with Bischoff and a "Detective McGlocklin" for what she termed their action in framing her.

The letter, authorities declared, was found in Bischoff's permanent home in Audubon, N. J., where live his present wife and daughter, who was given to him by a Philadelphia court in 1923, when he divorced the woman,

Calvin Coolidge Says:

The power of the President to veto legislation is one of the important checks of our constitutional system. It would be difficult to demonstrate that any refusal to approve an act of the Congress has caused great harm, while it is easy to discover vetoes that have been of great benefit to the country.

Legislators will often approve a bill which an individual would reject because functioning through mass action divides and dilutes their responsibility. Moreover, the President represents all the people while a senator or representative usually considers only his constituents. Generally the power has been used sparingly. Eight Presidents never resorted to it. Washington returned but two bills, Lincoln but three. Cleveland holds the high record, having disapproved 343 measures.

The veto power is not a method by which the judgment of one man is to be used to override the judgment of the Congress. It is to provide opportunity to reconsider a doubtful measure. The knowledge that legislation will be reviewed, that it may be disapproved in a public statement by the President has a distinctly deterrent and sobering effect. The veto power safeguards the right of all the people.

Three Bandits Hold Up Bus, Rob 24 Occupants of $578

Driver, Suspicious of Man Flagging Vehicle, Fails to Stop, But Accomplices, Among Passengers, Draw Guns and Give Command to Halt.

Portsmouth, Ohio, March 1 (A.P.).—Three men, armed with revolvers, but unmasked, held up 22 passengers and 2 drivers on a Blue and Gray bus at George Postoffice, 7 miles north of here, early today and escaped in an automobile with $578.

Two of the robbers boarded the bus at Columbus. The third, driving a new automobile, parked his car at George Postoffice and flagged down the bus with a flashlight.

The bus driver became suspicious and failed to stop. The robbers in the bus then leaped to their feet, whipped out revolvers and forced the driver to stop. The third man entered the bus and covered the drivers while his accomplices robbed the passengers.

With their hands in the air, the victims were searched and relieved of their money. The bandits were outwitted by the only woman passenger, however. She was Ann Graham, Columbus, who placed her diamond ring in her mouth, dropped her purse to the floor and kept her feet over it. She saved both.

The passengers robbed and the amounts taken included R. Scott Holley, Watugh, Tenn., $250; Mitchell Humphreys, Watugh, Tenn., $24, and George Luckritz, Detroit, $30.

Capital Ships' Limit Is Set at 26,000 Tons

Paris, March 1 (A.P.).—Le Matin says that by the naval accord settled today France, Great Britain and Italy agreed not to build capital ships of more than 26,000 tons and that negotiations will be opened the persuade the United States and Japan to adhere to this provision.

As regards submarines, the paper continues, France accepted a slight decrease in her total tonnage.

These and other provisions, it was stated, preclude anything like a naval race and will enable France to economize on her budget without loss of security.

Fishing Crew Believed Lost in North Sea Gale

London, March 1.—Storms sweeping the eastern Atlantic and northern Europe over the week-end were believed tonight to have taken several lives and spread considerable damage over a wide area.

The entire crew of sixteen of a Dutch fishing trawler was feared drowned off Rosehearty, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. The trawler was reported pounding bottom upwards in tremendous seas a short distance off shore. Assistance was impossible on account of the heavy seas. One body was washed ashore.

Trotzky's Villa Is Burned; Plot of Russians Scouted

Exiled Soviet Leader and Wife Flee Flames and Escape Uninjured; Valuable Papers, Including Material for Book, Are Destroyed.

Istanbul, Turkey, March 1 (A.P.).—The villa occupied by Leon Trotzky, on Prinkipo Island, in the Sea of Marmora, burned to the ground this morning.

The exiled Soviet leader, who has been ill with malaria, and his wife, who also has ben ill, were uninjured, but their private possessions, including material for a book the exile had been writing, were destroyed.

Trotzky was not even able to save a suit of clothes, but he did rescue valuable letters from Lenin, with whom he was associated in the early days of the Soviet Union.

The fire was started by a faulty stove in a bathroom on the lower floor of the villa. The blaze awakened the cook, who roused the family. Trotzky's secretary seized two fire extinguishers belonging to the house, but found both empty, and when Turkish firemen arrived they were hampered by a lack of water, which made it impossible to put out the flames until a greater part of the rambling wooden dwelling had been destroyed.

Trotzky and his wife took refuge in a Prinkipo Hotel. The exile refused to emerge tonight, but in-than six months as provisional president of Peru and was forced out by the same thing that put him in power—revolution.

In August of last year a revolution began in the Southern City of Arequipa under the leadership of Sanchez Cerro, then a lieutenant colonel in the Army who had long been noted for his opposition to the regime of President Augusto B. Leguia and spent some time in exile.

At first the central government held out, just as did Sanchez Cerro in the past week, but the Army and Navy in Lima overthrew Leguia and set up a military junta, inviting Sanchez Cerro to come north and join in establishing a new government.

The fiery southern soldier refused secondary position and threatened trouble if he were not to dominate the new administration. He flew from Arequipa to Lima, receiving tremendous acclaim from the people, and soon was installed as president.

Refused New Salary.

Thereupon he announced a program for a return to normalcy, including free elections to choose a constitutional president, the upholding of national obligations and prosecution of those of the Leguia administration who were charged with misappropriating public funds. As a gesture toward economy, he refused the salary of president and continued to draw his small wage as a lieutenant.

Labor troubles developed in the northern Peruvian oil fields shortly afterward, and since then the administration of Sanchez Cerro has been marked by discontent. There have been other labor troubles, frequent changes in the cabinet and numerous rumors that all was not going well.

The first open outbreak came on Friday, February 20, when troops at Callao revolted. Loyal forces soon suppressed the uprising in this town, which is only 7 miles from Lima and is the capital's port, after some 60 had been killed and 39 arrested for court-martial.

Troops in Revolt.

Only a few hours later a revolt broke out at Arequipa among the same troops who gave Sanchez power a few months before. The leaders insisted that the provisional president had not called elections as he had promised, and also had offered himself as a candidate for chief executive, thus violating the principles of the August revolution.

A few days later Sanchez Cerro withdrew his candidacy, hoping thereby to bring peace, but then a new uprising developed—this time around Piura, in the northern oil region.

The government determined to fight in both the north and south and started troops by boat each way on the coast. It was realized by observers that the navy by this time held the key to the provisional president's fate, and when it declared against him today he had no recourse other than to resign.

birth and revival of the ideas, doctrines and spirit which underlie popular government."

"The breakdown of dominant business and political leadership," he said, "during the past ten years has been so complete as to raise very acutely the issue of popular government. This leadership, including the Hoover administration, was as unconscious of the awful panic 24 hours before it broke in October, 1929, as the inhabitants of the southeast corner of the moon.

"The country was rapidly being taught that business cycles were a thing of the past and that only broader, sounder and indefinite prosperity was ahead.

"During the last sixteen months this country, followed by most others, has been on its back industrially, commercially and economically, with a complete dislocation and maladjustment with respect to production, credit and distribution.

"Millions of people are hungry, while American farmers are burning their wheat for fuel. The processes of production, distribution and consumption are hopelessly out of equilibrium, with the result that 20,000,000 able-bodied persons in the civilized world are unemployed and seeking soup houses and bread lines, while vast surpluses in most lines are everywhere piled up behind impregnable tariff walls, which hopelessly prevent even the most profitable exchanges of barter between nations.

"Here is presented a huge and most pressing collection of extremely vital economic problems—including both causes and remedies—for solution by the Democratic party."

The Oklahoma and Virginia Democratic House delegations already have filed protests with their committeemen against commitments of the party at the meeting.

retary Mellon to increase to $500,000,000 or more in the last quarter of the fiscal year ending June 30.

For the bond and certificate issues the Government took advantage of the easy money conditions and saved one-eighth of 1 per cent on $500,000,000 in bonds and 1½ per cent on the $600,000,000 in certificates which will replace the maturing 3½ per cent Treasury notes issued five years ago. Through the decreased interest the Treasury will save approximately $10,500,000 annually.

The refunding operation is the first of a series that will confront the Treasury during the next two years as short-term securities and Liberty bonds fall due. In May two issues of Treasury bills, aggregating $60,000,000 and $154,000,000, become payable. In June two issues of certificates of indebtedness, one of 2⅞ per cent certificates, amounting to $429,000,000, and the other of 1¼ per cent certificates, totaling $159,000,000, must be paid.

Next year the Treasury also must arrange for the maturing of two issues of Liberty bonds which are callable. It expects to retire $1,983,500,000 in first Liberty bonds in 1932 and $6,260,000,000 of fourth Liberty loan bonds in 1933.

Banks Expected to Aid In Making Bonus Loans

(Associated Press.)

Banks throughout the country were looked to yesterday by Veterans Administrator Hines for assistance in making loans to war veterans on their compensation certificates. In a statement Mr. Hines said all banks can loan money on the certificates.

"The more banks extend loan privileges to veterans," he added, "the sooner will the present problem of veterans' loans to met."

Mr. Hines said this would afford the veterans an opportunity to obtain loans in their own communities instead of having to apply to the veterans' regional office.

AL SMITH TO TALK AT RALEIGH TODAY

All of Theater Seats Sold; Former Governor Will Address Legislature.

Raleigh, N. C., March 1 (A.P.).—Raleigh's traffic troubles will be increased when Alfred E. Smith comes here tomorrow to address the Legislature.

The 1,300 tickets for seats in the city's largest theater, where the former Governor of New York will speak, gave out last Friday.

To meet the demand from thousands that they be given a chance to hear Smith, city officials announced today an entire business block will be roped off in front of the theater and loudspeakers placed at strategic points.

Centerville, Md., March 1 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, who, with Mrs. Smith, spent the week-end here at the home of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, left this afternoon by automobile for Raleigh, N. C., where tomorrow Mr. Smith is scheduled to address a joint session of the State Legislature.

Mr. Smith also has been invited to speak to the Georgia legislators before he returns to Washington and New York. The Georgia Assembly's final adjournment is expected in a few days.

The week-end at the Raskob estate here came on the eve of the meeting of the party's national committee in Washington, set for next Thursday, the day after the adjournment of Congress.

Firemen of Virginia To Plan Joint Gathering

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 1.—The executive committee of the Virginia State Firemen's Association will meet March 5 to formulate plans for the joint gathering here in August of that association and the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association. C. E. Woodward, Lexington, president, will preside at the committee meeting.

The two associations will hold separate business meetings but joint parades, made up of firemen from Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and probably other States.

Bathrooms and Salads Intrigue British Miss

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Bathrooms and heavenly salads.

That's what America means to Miss Ellen Wilkinson, British M. P., recently returned to London after a lecture tour of the United States.

"When I think about visits to Italy, I think about pictures and lovely hillsides and convenient memory covers up the rest," she said today in a transatlantic broadcast from London over the Columbia Broadcasting System network.

"But America means bathrooms and, oh, much lovely food. * * *

"Those jolly little taps in the wall did just delightful things.

"Those salads were the most amazing for sweet and sour combined into a heavenly whole."

WOMEN SEE VICTORY IN 25-YEAR CONTEST

Repeal of Measure Depriving Those Wedding Aliens of Citizenship Is Near.

(Associated Press.)

A 25-year campaign against a law depriving women of American citizenship when they marry aliens last night was believed near success.

Both houses of Congress have passed a bill repealing this provision and the House is expecterd to act before adjournment on minor Senate amendments. That would place the issue up to President Hoover.

The measure is championed in the House by Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, who once lost her citizenship through marriage to a British army officer.

Favorable action would add the United States to the list of thirteen other nations in which women have the same nationality rights as men, under the laws of their country.

Interest on Increase.

Back in the early days of the women's rights movement, Lucretia Mott and Susan B. Anthony declared in favor of this principle, but interest in the matter was largely academic. Comparatively few women, the world around, married outside their own nationality.

In the last decade, however, the nationality question has become an international rallying cry in the feminist movement.

Increased facilities for travel and accelerated interest in other people multiplied the international marriages and muddled questions in which citizenship was concerned.

Under conflicting laws of various countries, some married women found themselves with two or three citizenships, while others had none.

Made International Attack.

Whenever the feminists got down to cases, they found they had to deal also with the laws of the husband's country.

Simultaneously, therefore, they made national and international attacks for parity of nationality, with scores of women's organizations in the field.

The recent All-Asian conference of women at Lahore, first of its kind, was the latest recruit.

Most militant on Capitol Hill have been the members of the National Woman's Party, interlocked with the Inter-American Commission of Women, groups centering about Alice Paul, now in Geneva; Mrs. Harvey S. Wiley, Doris Stevens and Maude Younger.

Mrs. Owen Star Witness.

To direct their final intensive campaign, Muna Lee de Munoz Marin, an American with a Spanish name by marriage, came from the University of Porto Rico with the blessings of Gov. Roosevelt of that country.

"I am heartily in sympatthy with the cause which takes you to continental United States," was Gov. Roosevelt's farewell to her. "No woman should lose her nationality by marriage."

The star witness during the hearings was Ruth Bryan Owen, who testified "with a family line so directly American it includes eleven ancestors under arms in the Revolution."

She had to defend her seat in Congress from the charge she had not been an American citizen long enough.

Notable Stride Taken By Building in Chicago

Chicago, March 1 (A.P.).—A notable forward stride in Chicago building operations is shown for February, S. W. Straus & Co. reported today that 126 February building permits were issued, totaling $7,877,000, a gain of 177.5 per cent over January and 46.5 per cent gain over February, 1930.

BARNES OPTIMISTIC OVER TRADE FUTURE

Chairman of Hoover Survey Conference Finds Improvement.

(Associated Press.)

An improving trend in the condition of American business was discerned yesterday by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the National Business Survey Conference appointed by President Hoover.

In a report on the midwinter economic status of the United States Mr. Barnes saw a number of optimistic signs. Outstanding features of the report were summarized as follows:

"Recurring demonstration that industry generally has attained an adjustment of stocks, production and marketing in which even a moderate expansion in demand will have immediate results.

"An improving trend from the low point in December.

"Evidence that reduced city spending reflects into lower farm prices for products in which there is no apparent depressing surplus, such as most dairy products.

"Clear indication that the volume of savings in their various forms has been large and is still mounting."

Expressions of Confidence.

Mr. Barnes said his summary was based on reports from the chief lines of American business. He added they had been accompanied "almost uniformly by expressions of confidence and energy which are apparently themselves the fruits of improved conditions."

Discussing international conditions Mr. Barnes said: "Repeated evidences of improved conditions are recorded."

Reviewing national credit conditions, he said, "The long term capital market over the past two and one-half months has reflected an improved condition."

Collections Fair.

In wholesale centers, the bulk of collections were classed as but fair during recent weeks. Most forms of insurance were sold in decreased quantities during January as compared with the same month last year.

Building construction for the first six weeks of the year was estimated to have totaled $350,451,000 against $443,567,000 for the same period a year ago. A consequent reduction in the movement of building material was noted.

"The tonnage of structural steel contracts reached its low figure for several months during January," the report said, "after which there was decided improvement extending well through February."

Higher Construction Budget.

Light and power companies were said to be budgeting new construction for this year at $892,000,000, compared with $850,000,000 last year, but the output of electric current in February was about 5 per cent less than the corresponding month of 1930.

With declining stocks of copper on hand, "prices of nonferrous metals have become slightly firmer during recent weeks," the report added. The gradual progress of the steel industry was described as having brought February operations to 52 per cent of plant capacity from 39 per cent in December.

Orders of the United States Steel Corporation were greater in volume than at any time since April.

Motor vehicle production was declared to have shown "a January increase slightly better than the usual seasonal advance," with export sales showing a tendency to increase.

Kin of Aid to King May Avenge Death

Blood Feud Over Slaying of Albanian Officer Is Termed Possible.

Vienna, March 1 (A.P.).—The possibilities of a blood feud to avenge the death of Maj. Topolla], who was killed here recently in protecting King Zog of Albania from two assassins, was seen today in dispatches from Belgrade.

The officer will be buried in either his native mountain-inclosed village of Mati or in Tirana, where he and his wife lived. In declaring a blood feud against murderers the relatives usually go through the solemn rite of swearing vengeance either at the graveside or after the mourners return to the home of the victim.

Previous reports from Albania had indicated relatives might be called together to swear a curse against the assassins of Topolla], who was the devoted adjutant to the king. Zog is undergoing treatment here for an ailment of the throat and stomach.

French Fliers Set Endurance Record

Men, Aloft 75 Hours, Cover 5,470 Miles in Closed-Circuit Test.

Oran, Algeria, March 1 (A.P.).—The French aviators, Lucien Bossourout and Aime Rossi, today broke the record for duration flight in a closed circuit by remaining in the air 75 hours and 23 minutes and covering a distance of 5,470 miles.

The Frenchmen, who took off Thursday morning, bettered the record established last June by Italian fliers, Maddalena and Cecconi, who remained aloft 67 hours and 13 minutes and covered 5,087 miles.

Boussourout is a veteran French pilot and also holds an altitude record for having flown 3,583 meters (about 11,755 feet) with a load of 5,000 kilograms (about 11,023 pounds). He attempted the first flight from Paris to Dakar, Africa, being forced down in Africa. He was lost for a week.

House Loses Three Women Members as Session Ends

Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Oldfield and Mrs. Langley to Retire; Latter Planning New Campaign; Others Appear Unwilling to Again Be Candidates.

(Associated Press.)

Three of the nine women members of the House will go out of office when Congress adjourns next Wednesday.

They are Ruth Hanna McCormick (Republican), Illinois, who ran for the Senate and was defeated by James Hamilton Lewis, a Democrat; Pearl Peden Oldfield (Democrat), Arkansas, who is retiring voluntarily, and Katherine Langley (Republican), Kentucky, defeated for reelection by a Democrat.

The remaining six of the feminine House contingent will return for the next session.

Mrs. Langley declined to talk as she gathered her things yesterday to return to Kentucky, but it is understood she is planning to campaign for reelection.

Mrs. McCormick silently looked back on her vigorous fight for the Senate, then glancing to the future, said: "I don't know."

"Nothing could induce me to get into the next race." Mark Hanna's daughter added. "What is beyond—" She did not finish.

Mrs. Oldfield confessed she was homesick.

"I am crazy to go home," she said. "My successor will be here tomorrow. I will be glad to turn over the office.

"My district has honored the Oldfields for a quarter of a century, and I am conscious of the debt of gratitude we owe.

"Because of this I have endeavored to cast my votes as carefully as if on each depended reelection."

She will remain here through the summer heat out of consideration for her octogenarian mother, before returning home.

Somewhat rested though not yet back to the fighting trim in which she began the Senate contest, Mrs. McCormick looked eagerly toward Easter vacation. At that time she will take her 15-year-old son, Medill, from his Colorado school to Mexico.

Later, she and her debutante daughter, Katrina, and the younger girl, Bazie, will go back to their farm in Illinois. She will center her efforts chiefly on her two newspapers.

"I'm going to dig in on those papers," Mrs. McCormick asserted. "I'm going to pay close attention to details of the operation and of the editing."

Hoover Views Peace Move As Among Chief Victories

Ratification of London Naval Pact Fulfilled Ambition Held From Time He First Sought Presidency; Many Changes Made in Regime.

This is the second of three articles by Kirke Simpson, veteran Washington reporter of The Associated Press, outlining the problems and national emergencies faced by President Hoover in his two years as President.

By KIRKE SIMPSON.

(Associated Press.)

There can be little doubt that Herbert Hoover looks upon his labors in behalf of world peace as the most striking accomplishment of his first two years as President of the United States.

Negotiation and ratification of the London naval pact fulfilled an ambition Mr. Hoover entertained from the hour he determined to seek the Presidency. He was discussing it with his old friend, Ambassador Hugh Gibson (through whom his suggestions for the London conference were first made at Geneva) months before he actually entered the White House.

Yet there is reason to suppose that Mr. Hoover looks upon that treaty as only the hub of his peace works of those two years. His whole attitude on foreign affairs, from his preinauguration goodwill tour in Pan-America to announcements in February, 1931, of the impending withdrawal of Marine forces from Nicaragua, is part of a single picture as Republican spokesmen paint those first two Hoover years.

World Peace Put First.

During the last congressional campaigning, it was upon Hoover leadership that Republican campaign agencies built up their party appeal. And it was world peace efforts that they placed first in the list of accomplishments under that leadership, probably with Mr. Hoover's personal sanction.

Yet there has been much in the way of governmental rearrangements and reorganizations that belongs to the story of Mr. Hoover's first half-term.

These accomplishments are likely to be forgotten in the hurly-burly of his many clashes with the Senate over such things as the farm debenture, the tariff, Supreme Court nominations and the denial of confirmation to Judge Parker of North Carolina, personnel of the reorganized power commission, drought relief and, last but not least, raising the loan value of veterans' bonus certificates.

There is the unification of all veteran aid activities, for instance, under the one-man control of Administrator Hines.

Again, there was the transfer of prohibition enforcement activities from the Treasury to Justice Department control. That was a first recommendation of Mr. Hoover's Law Enforcement Study Commission. In moving with all the influence of his office to execute that recommendation, the President may have hoped the commission's ultimate findings on prohibition would be equally easy of achievement.

There are other things accomplished in Mr. Hoover's first two years that reflect his fame as a business engineer and apostle of efficiency.

Sees Drought Aid Victory.

They range from revamping the methods and equipment of Federal prisons, under the spur of a series of prison revolts in State institutions, to swift progress on the building of a new and beautiful Washington.

There has been revision, too, of American diplomatic contacts with other nations, particularly in the selection of men of the career foreign service for assignments in Latin America. The White House has given special attention to that.

It seems possible, in the light of his strongly held views against embarking the Government on a policy of granting charity disbursements from the Treasury for stricken citizens, that that President Hoover may regard the outcome of his drought-relief conflict with the Senate as among his important achievements.

Last Two Years Hardest.

Contrary to the pithy philosophy of that expression that the first hundred years is the hardest—and Mr. Hoover's first two years must sometimes seem to him like a hundred—the first half-term of a new President is the easiest, if he hopes and expects to succeed himself. It is the last two years which are the hardest, the vital years.

With a new Congress of very slim Republican majorities in both House and Senate, Mr. Hoover faces his next two years under exceptionally difficult handicaps.

The President enters the next phase of his administration, too, with a vexing problem still to be solved in making over the central party machine, the Republican national committee.

He is not the first occupant of the White House to have found himself perhaps the pawn instead of the master of political destiny.

HENRY A. COOPER, HOUSE DEAN, DIES SUDDENLY IN HOTEL HERE

when he received hurts in a fall at his home in Racine. He also had been worried over the health of his wife, who recently underwent a serious operation.

The House will recess today in tribute to him. Speaker Longworth also made public that he will name a House committee during the day to accompany the body Wednesday afternoon, when it leaves here for Racine for funeral services.

The veteran legislator, despite his own flagging health, had been active in recent weeks and had looked forward keenly to entering the new Congress, to which he had been reelected by a landslide vote.

He was author of the recent bill to rename B street northwest "Constitution avenue," as the ceremonial thoroughfare in the center of the Mall development program. The bill several days ago was signed by the President.

Born in Spring Prairie, Wis., September 8, 1850, he made his home continuously in that State. After graduating from Northwestern University and from Union College of Law, part of the old University of Chicago, he served three terms as Racine County district attorney, one term in the State Senate, where he introduced the bill establishing the Australian ballot system in the State. He was delegate to the Republican national conventions in Chicago in 1884, in Chicago in 1908, and in Cleveland in 1924.

He began his Congressional service in March 1893 in the Fifty-third Congress and served continuously until March 3, 1919. He was defeated for reelection to the Sixty-sixth Congress (March 1919-1921) because he voted against entering the World War. He was reelected to the succeeding Congress and served continuously until his death.

His title as the oldest man in Congress was held by a bare five-day margin over Representative George S. Graham, of Pennsylvania.

During his early House career he won a place on the foreign affairs committee, but for two open clashes in 1923 and 1924 with Republican leaders, regarding his support of the elder LaFollette, he was punished by losing his high place on the committee.

A close friend of President McKinley, he headed an investigating committee authorized to formulate a policy for the Philippines, but his suggestion for independence for the islands was left in abeyance. A bridge in the Philippines has been named for him.

McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft all sought his counsel during their administrations.

Death First in New House G. O. P. Ranks

(Associated Press.)

The death of Representative Henry Allen Cooper is the first in the Republican ranks for the next House. Already two deaths have occurred in the Democratic forces but the vacancies have been filled through special elections.

The line-up for the next House now stands:

Republicans 217 with one vacancy; Democrats 216, and Farmer-Labor 1.

Organization of the House in the Seventy-second Congress next December will depend largely on the number of deaths and other vacancies that might occur.

Army Bans Youth Held as Car Thief

Crime Conviction Blocks Enlistment; Faces Jail if He Fails.

Baltimore, Md., March 1 (A.P.).—The Third Corps Army headquarters has refused to accept the enlistment of a Somerset, Pa., youth, ordered by a jurist to "join the Army and learn some discipline."

He had stolen an automobile. Orders to block the enlistment were sent into three States from corps headquarters here.

The Army pointed to its "high standards of character" and said conviction of a crime is a bar against admission. Unless the youth succeeds in entering the Army or the Navy in three months he faces a jail sentence, the judge said.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

SUSPECT IS NABBED IN ROADHOUSE DEATH

Man Is Accused of Beating Proprietor With Gun; Is Taken to Maryland.

Alleged to have beaten the Negro proprietor of a road house near Woodyard, Md., over the head with the end of a shotgun so severely the man died a few hours later in Casualty Hospital, Edward H. Stewart, 39, of New York avenue, near Ninth street northwest, was arrested here yesterday at the request of Deputy Sheriff Tom Garrison, of Hyattsville.

Stewart was taken to Maryland in the custody of Sheriff W. C. Hopkins and Garrison, and he is alleged to have made a statement in which he said that he took a shotgun from the Negro, Hillyard Jackson, when Jackson attempted to shoot him. He further said, officers declared, that after taking the gun from Jackson, he struck the Negro over the head with it in an effort to protect himself from an attack.

The story about the shotgun was verified by Deputy Garrison, he said, when he went to the roadhouse and saw the load of buckshot that had lodged in the front of the house. This charge, he said he had learned, was intended for Stewart, who only escaped through the timely intervention of others in the party.

Deputy Sheriff Garrison said Stewart was arrested in a lunchroom here when he was overheard talking about the shooting. Stewart had just been released from the First Precinct on a charge of intoxication. Two others are being sought for questioning, the deputy sheriff said.

structed his secretary to tell the press the fire was due entirely to the overheated stove and had no connection with any plot by White Russians or adherents of the present Russian regime.

Trotzky's valuable library of hundreds of books was destroyed, as were many papers which were the fruit of his mental labors for two years. Material for a forthcoming book on contemporary political figures was lost, but he managed to save a manuscript of a history of the Russian revolution which is about to be published.

The noted exile had intended next month to quit the villa because the proprietress refused to repair it. He rented it from the son of a former Turkish grand vizier.

CHERRYDALE SCHOOL FLAG IS PRESENTED

Daughters of America Group Donors; Superintendent Accepts Emblem.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 8092 Clarendon, Va.

Accepting the American flag on behalf of the Arlington County School Board and the Parent-Teacher Association, which was yesterdayday presented to the Cherrydale School, County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp declared that the flag stood for patriotism which was one of the cardinal principles of the Cherrydale Council No. 11, Daughters of America, who presented the flag.

"Today when our country is passing through a period of depression there should be more loyalty displayed to our flag as there is an element in our country that, if they could, would tear down the very foundation of our Government," Mr. Kemp declared.

"There is no organization in our country today that displays more real loyalty and patriotism than the Daughters of America," he said.

"I sometimes wonder if we all have the same patriotism that we are here today displaying all through the days of the year. If we have not, we should," he declared.

"We should not only fly the American flag, which I here hold in my hand, from every school building but there should be one in every class room, that the children of today and the citizens of tomorrow may learn and have forever impressed on their minds that for which it stands," he said in conclusion.

The flag was presented on behalf of the Cherrydale Council, No. 11, Daughters of America by Past Councilor Mrs. Helen Thomas.

Others speakers were Miss Sophie Mann, State Vice Councilor, Miss Bessie Kenyon, State secretary, both of whom spoke at length on the cardinal principals of the organization which are Love, Loyalty and Patriotism.

The exercises opened with the invocation by the Rev. F. A. Trader, followed by the singing of "America" by the audience numbering more than 300 persons.

The program concluded with a salute to the flag by the Cherrydale Boy Scouts troop and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Announcement was made that the council will, on next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, present an American flag to the Woodmont School at Thrifton Village.

Funeral services for George Francis Comley, 36 years old, who died at his home at Leeway, Arlington County, Saturday afternoon, will be conducted at the home this afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Rev. SALES OF TOBACCO SET NEW RECORD

Petersburg Markets Handle 5,010,434 Pounds for Season Just Ended.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., March 1.—Petersburg tobacco markets handled a total of 5,010,434 pounds during the season which closed Friday, it is disclosed by figures released by the Tobacco Board of Trade. This is a new high mark for the local markets in their history.

Of this total 4,878,094 pounds represent bright tobacco and 132,340 pounds of dark leaf. The bright tobacco brought a total price of $436,677.93, and the dark $6,291.61, making the total for the entire quantity sold here $442,969.53.

In announcing its figures for the past season and commenting on the outlook for next year, the Tobacco Board of Trade states that after this season no more dark leaf will be handled here. All available warehouse space will be needed for the bright crop, it is believed.

Bright Tobacco Record.

The bright tobacco sold here this season represents the largest amount of this type that has ever been marketed here during a season, and represents an increase over the previous season of 1,363,091 pounds. The sales of bright tobacco during the past eleven seasons have been as follows:

1920, 3,863,863 pounds; 1921, 3,457,595 pounds; 1922, 4,329,440 pounds; 1923, 4,482,027 pounds; 1924, 2,846,879 pounds; 1925, 3,489,490 pounds; 1926, 2,940,577 pounds; 1927 4,013,650 pounds; 1928, 3,010,406 pounds; 1929, 3,515,003 pounds; 1930, 3,878,094 pounds.

On account of the increased growth of the bright leaf in this section, together with the large amount of tobacco being brought here by farmers from distant points, it is believed that the bright sales during another season will require all of the warehouse space.

Dark Tobacco Discontinued.

Therefore, the Petersburg Tobacco Board of Trade decided to discontinue the sale of dark tobacco after the present season.

The quality of tobacco produced in this section during the past season was not up to the usual standard, which was brought about by the unfavorable weather during the part summer. This market has established the reputation of selling the best bright tobacco in the State, and during recent years it has led the entire State in getting a higher average price for tobacco than any of the other markets.

The land in this section, as well as that to the east and south of Petersburg, is not surpassed anywhere in the world for growing good bright tobacco.

English Teachers Convene March 6

Dr. Davis Will Be Speaker at Session to Be Held in Petersburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

REDS OUST 138,000 PUBLIC EMPLOYES

Soviet Government Starts "Cleansing" to Improve Administration.

Moscow, March 1 (A.P.).—Despite the serious shortage of workers and charges of forced labor, authorities have announced that through a special "cleansing" process some 138,000 government public employes in the Soviet Union have been dismissed from service.

It was stated that more than 123,000 persons have been thoroughly examined and "cleansed." Numerous others were transferred to different jobs, for which they were thought better fitted, and many were demoted for lack of skill. A large percentage were dismissed outright.

The principal causes of the dismissals were described as "distortion of the government policy, bureaucratism and incompetence."

Dismissals Are Labeled

The official statement said "incurable bureaucrats, embezzlers of government funds, former czarists, landlords, former gendarmerie officers, former police officials, ecclesiastical servants and other inveterate enemies of the Soviet system were dismissed under the first category."

These workers can not be reemployed in government offices, but they may engage in other occupations. Altogether, about 25,000 were let go under the first category. All of them may appeal to higher bodies which can restore those expelled or lessen the severity of their treatment.

Those discharged under categories 2 and 3 generally find employment immediately in other institutions, such as technical offices, involving less responsibility.

40 Departments "Cleansed."

In Moscow, along with the "cleansing," authorities already have completed examination of 40 central departments of the government, employing 31,000 persons. Two hundred and fifty offices, employing 74,000, still remain to be investigated.

The formal reason given for the campaign is "to improve and rationalize the government machinery as a whole and to examine the personnel from a point of view of their fitness."

The truth is that the Soviet leaders realize there is a huge quantity of irresponsible and unnecessary work being done in the Soviet Union, and the labor shortage would be materially decreased if the incompetents were discharged or transferred.

Greatest Weeding in History.

Consequently the weeding out process is one of the greatest in the history of the country, and officials are enthusiastic over the results to be expected.

A number of Kerensky ministers, as well as other high czarist officials and white guard army officers, have been dismissed from the finance commissariat and other departments.

The highest appeal body for those who want their old jobs back is known as the "central commission for purging." It is headed by a woman, Mme. A. Sokolovkaya.

Snowstorm Checks Paris' Hint of Spring

Paris, March 1.—March came in like a hybrid animal today—half lamb, half lion—a freak storm following a mild, sunny morning.

The day started bright with a hint of spring in the air, but a few hours later Parisians scurried for shelter. Black clouds rolled over the city and the phenomenon of a snowstorm punctuated by flashes of lightning and heavy thunder frightened the superstitious

Income Tax Facts

No. 29.

Charitable contributions and gifts are deductible within the limitations of the revenue act. In order that a deduction may be made, contributions to a corporation, trust, community chest fund, or foundation must meet several tests. Such organizations must be operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. No part of its income must inure to the benefit of private stockholders or individuals.

Every church constitutes a religious corporation for the purpose of this deduction. Contributions made to a missionary fund, to church building funds, and for the benefit of other activities of the church are deductible. Pew rents, assessments, and dues paid to churches are regarded as ccontributions.

Gifts to an individual are not deductible, but if made to a charitable organization, as defined by the revenue act, may be deducted even though the organization distributes the gifts among individual beneficiaries.

Contributions made to the United States, the District of Columbia, any State or Territory, or any "political subdivision thereof," for "exclusively public purposes" are deductible. A gift of real estate to be maintained perpetually as a public park is deductible.

Taxpayers are required to state in their returns the name and address of each organization to which a gift is made, and the amount of the gift in each case.

German Fascists Gain at Election

Followers of Hitler Poll 27,040 Votes, but Trail Social Democrats.

Brunswick, Germany, March 1 (A.P.).—German Fascists showed appreciable but not spectacular gains in the municipal election held here today.

Followers of Adolf Hitler polled 27,040 votes as against 25,252 cast in the 1930 Reichstag elections, but still trailed the Social Democrats, who kept their status as the largest party with 37,672. This, however, represented a loss of nearly 4,000 compared with the Social Democratic Reichstag vote.

On the percentage basis the Communists showed the biggest gain over the Reichstag figures. They polled 12,236, which is almost 40 per cent more than in 1930.

TWO GIRLS TRAMP IN DEATH VALLEY

Hike Through Burning Sand Only to Have Radiator Freeze in Night.

RESCUE COMES AT LAST

Los Angeles, Calif., March 1.—With no more than a few muscular kinks and twinges to remind them that their recent enforced 25-mile hike through the desert wastes of Death Valley was an actuality and not a dream, Miss Nellie Bate and Miss Hilda Marsh, librarians of the University of Southern California, returned to their library posts none the worse for the experience, declaring that they would be willing to start right out again on a motor trip to the valley, but they had no desire to give a second performance of the lost-in-the-wilderness act.

On a motor trip to Death Valley the two women left Death Valley Scotty's desert castle, intending to return to Los Angeles by way of Stove Pipe Wells. But a forked road with no sign posts led them astray, and when night enveloped them they were 30 miles away from Scotty's, at the end of the road and without the vaguest notion as to their whereabouts.

Radiator Freezes.

Following a night spent in the car and the discovery in the morning that the radiator was frozen, came the realization that a desert trek loomed as an immediate necessity. Hiking, however, had been totally unpremeditated in their vacation plans, so preparations consisted only in taking a steamer rug apiece and a few apples. Regardless of light-soled shoes and the lack of fitting attire, they set forth upon a quest for some human habitation.

"I have lived in Montana," said Miss Marsh, "so I had some idea of wild country and I knew that there was just one thing for us to do—and that was to get ourselves out before hunger and thirst overtook us, for the section we were in, the Lost Burro country, is an abandoned mining section and we could have been there indefinitely without the possibility of meeting a passer-by."

Miss Bate explained that the road was like a river wash, covered with stone and with two ruts where they were able to get a footing. If they deviated from this course, she said, they floundered about in knee-deep sand.

Night's Bivouac.

When night came and they could go no farther, the librarians dug a hole about 6 inches deep in the sand, they said, rolled up in their blankets and prepared to shiver through the night. It was about the blackest night in their lives, they declared, but in spite of their plight they were still able to note the brilliance of the stars. At length, in spite of their numbing cold and the unconforming sand, sheer exhaustion brought them relief in sleep.

The following morning they were just about at the end of their rope when they spied a party of surveyors approaching.

"Not another step did we take after seeing them," said Miss Marsh, "and when they drove up it was several moments before we could utter a syllable. When finally we were able to explain the situation they lost no time in getting us to their camp, where they fed us hot chocolate and made us comfortable, while they went out to repair and bring our car."

Benjamin Harrison's Widow Talks of White House Days

Former First Lady Relives Years in Capital and Points Out Responsibilities and Difficulties That Beset Nation's Chief; Aids in Writing Biography.

Tucson, Ariz., March 1 (A.P.).—The White House left upon Mrs. Mary Lord Harrison an impress, unshakable through the years, of the inestimable responsibility placed by the people upon any man to whom they accord the right to sit in the presidential chair. The widow of Benjamin Harrison, twenty-third President of the United States, here on a visit from New York, told about it today.

"Primarily," she said, "a President must serve his country, regardless of politics, but, of course, he is elected by his party, and owes it a certain return. It is in giving this return that he finds his greatest trouble.

"My husband once said to me: 'Here is one appointment to make, and here are 400 persons wanting it.'

"So, you see, early in his term of office, the President, for example, makes 399 potential enemies to the one friend he gains in announcing an appointment which, actually, he himself has not made.

"The first Lady of the Land," she said, "soon learns that her duties are well defined for her before she reaches the White House. She is of assistance in many ways to her husband, for there is a social side to presidential life as well as the political.

"Life at the Capital is extremely interesting. I do not want to leave the impression that all is doleful, but the President's wife must be diplomatic and realize that she has more than her country to consider, as has her husband."

The youth of the land, Mrs. Harrison believes, should be taught "the utmost respect and loyalty at all times toward the President of the United States."

Mrs. Harrison said she is a great admirer of the young women of today. "I hope," she added, "the present-day woman will not lose all the romance and sentiment that the former generations have accumulated."

One of Mrs. Harrison's chief interests at the present is overseeing the writing by Albert Volwiler, professor of American history at Wittenburg College, Springfield, Ohio, of a biography of her late husband. The book was started in 1927 and will be completed within the next two years.

Mrs. Harrison is finding many pleasures in her first visit, as an adult, to the West, not the least of which is a reminiscent delight of scenes to which she was introduced as a small girl by her brother, Walter Scott Lord, then a civil engineer employed with field crews in the building of the Southern Pacific Railway. Mr. Lord served principally in surveying the Tehachapi Pass and Mohave Desert routes.

Shaw Says U. S. Does Fine When Britain Shows How

London, March 1 (A.P.).—Americans do things very well, says George Bernard Shaw—after the British show them how.

A Bournemouth theater manager sent the noted Irish playwright an American clipping calling the talking picture of "How He Lied to Her Husband" the world's biggest flop.

"There's not a word of truth in it," Mr. Shaw wrote in reply. "American experts insist on frequent changes of scene and long intervals of silence, during which the film is a movie and not a talkie.

"I have repeatedly challenged them to produce my plays on the screen just as they are produced on the stage. They declared it impossible, they could work only on condition of being allowed to adapt the play to their technique, instead of adapting their technique to the play.

"British International Pictures accepted the challenge and achieved the feat that Hollywood found impossible. How He Lied to Her Husband was selected because it pushed the test to the utmost. But Americans will do it very well when they've got over the first shock. They always do when shown the way."

In making public this letter Mr. Shaw said he was perfectly satisfied that in serious dramatic work conditions are essentially the same for the screen as for the stage.

"Hollywood doesn't think so," he said, "but we have proved it. Real dramatic entertainment in the talkies must conform to the same rules as on the stage. Some technical conditions are different. You can spend money on the screen, you can't on the stage. But finally the test is whether the play is a good play or a bad one."

Mr. Shaw said he had no present plans for making talkies of any other of his plays, but he has no objections to the talking pictures.

100 Pennies Loot of Thief.

FORMER RESIDENT OF CITY SUCCUMBS

Dr. William R. Andrews, 69, Dies at Jacksonville Home of Daughter.

Dr. William Randall Andrews, 69, former Washingtonian and member of a family residing here now, died yesterday morning at Jacksonville, Fla., where he had been living for the past year with a daughter, Mrs. Omar H. Stout.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Flora A. Jones, of Chevy Chase; three nephews, Charles A. Jones, of 3821 Gramercy street; Edward H. Jones, of 3 Magnolia Parkway, Chevy Chase; L. T. Jones, of 30 Grant Circle, and a niece, Mrs. Frank Simpson, of Chevy Chase.

Born in Kalamazoo, Mich., the only son of Capt. John F. Andrews, of the Sixth Michigan Cavalry, and Mrs. Andrews, he was brought here by his parents when 2 years old. He attended Washington public schools and when 14 years old became a page in the Senate. He studied telegraphy and worked for the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Co. becoming chief operator of the latter company when 25 years old.

In 1890 he was transferred to the Philadelphia offices of the Postal company and entered Hahnemann Medical College. Graduated in 1893 he entered practice of medicine in Rockville, Md. He moved in 1904 to West Virginia and maintained offices in Fairmont and Mannington. He was president of the West Virginia Homeopathic Medical Society for several terms, and was secretary-treasurer of the Southern Homeopathic Medical Society for more than a decade, holding this position until his death.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Funeral Chapel of William Ruben Pumphrey at Rockville, Md.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

President Hoover's statement on the Muscle Shoals resolution is universally accepted as an indication that he will veto the measure. He outlines objections which must rule his action unless he is prepared to agree that the Government should change its policy from regulation of power to operation of utilities and the manufacture of commodities. The engineering features of the proposal are under scrutiny, but they are mere surplusage, inserted to disguise the real purpose of the resolution.

Everybody knows that Senator Norris' object in this legislation is to commit the United States to the socialistic scheme of Government ownership and operation of power plants, and the manufacture of commodities. This is a political objective. It is not a plan to help the people of Alabama and Tennessee, but to change the fundamental policy of the Government.

Mr. Hoover points out that he has asked Congress to provide for the Federal regulation of power, in cooperation with the States. If Senator Norris were really anxious to safeguard the public interest in power matters he would have worked on a bill to provide for regulation. He is against regulation. He prefers to put the Government in the business of producing and selling power. The President's annual message in December asked for legislation providing for regulation of interstate power. Senator Norris has ignored this recommendation and has fought for socialization of power, beginning at Muscle Shoals. Very few legislators have had enough interest in the subject to study a plan for Federal regulation. Yet this regulation must be established if the public interests are to be safeguarded against corporate extortion on the one hand and communism on the other.

"To be against Senator Norris' bill," says the President, "appears to be cause for denunciation as being in league with the power companies." Naturally, a veto would be followed by the charge that Mr. Hoover had acted in behalf of the power trust. But that charge would not be true, and therefore it should not give Mr. Hoover any concern. He has already been denounced by Senator Norris and other radicals as being in league with the power companies. The public dismisses such slanders as fast as they are uttered.

Those legislators who refuse to set up a system of regulating power companies are working for the advantage of the companies. Senator Norris is one of these legislators, and he is especially culpable because he has long posed as champion of the public against the "power trust." Why does he not grapple with the trust, if there is a trust, and subject it to Government control? He would find able cooperation in President Hoover. The test of solicitude for the public is in action to regulate the forces which, if not regulated, might trample upon public rights. Although President Hoover has asked for such action, neither Senator Norris nor any other legislator has pressed for action.

The credit for proposing regulation of interstate power belongs to President Hoover. He need not worry over false allegations during the next campain if he should veto the Muscle Shoals scheme to put the Government in business. The record stands where all men can read it. It is an indictment of Senator Norris for failure to take any step to protect the public by regulating power companies, and for his persistent effort to establish the communist system as applied to power.

COPYRIGHT LEGISLATION.

The unfinished business before the Senate is the copyright bill. This measure is supported by authors, publishers, composers, film corporations and others, and good reasons are advanced for making an improvement upon the present copyright law. But the bill as it stands is a long step in favor of organized monopolies as against the public interest. Unless the bill can be radically amended it should be postponed for further study.

The purpose of a copyright or patent is to encourage authors and inventors to produce works that will benefit the public. In order that producers and the public should both receive benefits, the life of a copyright was originally fixed at fourteen years. This term has been repeatedly extended, and under the pending bill it would be fixed at 70 years. This enormous extension of monopoly right is based upon the argument that an author is entitled to pass on to his family the benefits of his work. But the manifold methods by which copyrighted material can be commercialized by corporations holding assignments make it possible to tax the public several times over for the same material. This can not be done in the case of patents. The proposed extension of copyright monopoly, with multiplication of charges upon the public, is manifestly a perversion of the constitutional intent of a copyright. If the public were not to benefit by the productions of authors and inventors there would have been no reason for granting copyrights or patents.

This legislation is pressed on the ground that American authors will be forever debarred from the benefits of the international copyright union unless the bill is enacted before August 1 next. A treaty providing for American adherence to the international union is pending, and it must be ratified also if the pending legislation is to be effective. American authors undoubtedly would benefit by the protection afforded by the international union, but the proposed legislation is so obviously defective that the Senate and House can well afford to study the subject further before acting. There need be no fear that the United States will be forever debarred from the society of nations in copyright matters if it should desire to cooperate. The duty of Congress is to safeguard the rights of the public as well as the rights of authors and the corporations which exploit their product.

THE TARIFF AS A SHIELD.

Calamity howlers continue to rejoice at the decline in international trade. In glib disregard of the facts, they pretend to see disaster in every report on this subject from the Department of Commerce or the Customs Bureau. Their aim is, of course, to discredit the American protective tariff system.

The undistorted facts do not support this propaganda. Senator Smoot has issued a statement, indicating the extent to which the critics of the protective system have departed from the facts. In the first place, they continue to compare the depression year of 1930 with the boom year of 1929. When the commerce of 1930 is compared with the five-year average nothing calamitous appears in the figures. Foreign and domestic commerce show approximately the same ratio of decline. Compared with the five-year average from 1922 to 1926 American foreign commerce of 1930 shows an increase of 7 per cent.

The most striking exaggeration made use of by the calamity howlers lies in the valuation of exports and imports. Prices fell radically during 1930, especially in foreign countries. Yet these critics continue to estimate present foreign trade on the 1929 prices of commodities. They point to a decline of 27 per cent in the value of exports, when the actual decrease in volume was only 19 per cent. They justify their denunciation of the "tariff wall" by the assertion that the value of imports fell off 30 per cent last year. As a matter of fact the decline in volume of imports was only 15 per cent. When the world-wide curtailment of business is considered it appears that the tariff act of 1930 has had no effect upon import trade.

Senator Smoot shows that the greatest part of the decline in international trade took place before the new tariff was enacted. Exports decreased only 4 per cent in the six months following enactment of the bill. During the preceding six months the decline was 19 per cent. No more conclusive evidence is needed to show that the temporary curtailment of international commerce was due to the world-wide depression and not to the tariff.

The balance of trade in favor of the United States has decreased since the current slump began. The absorptive capacity of this country for foreign commodities continues to be enormous in spite of the surplus of goods that were on hand when the depression began. It is reasonable to assume that if tariff duties had not been adjusted the United States would have been overwhelmed with foreign products when prices suddenly fell. Existing duties would not have been sufficient for protection. American industry would have been crippled and unemployment would have been many times as serious as it is today.

HEALTH PRESERVATION.

In a recent address based on the findings of the committee on costs of medical care, Walter P. Bowers, editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, stated that the United States can, if it will, become the world's healthiest Nation. At present this country is a long way from achieving that distinction. Nine other countries have a lower death rate than the United States in spite of the unexcelled health facilities available here. New Zealand is credited with a death rate of only 8.1 per 1,000 persons. Australia, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Ontario, England and Wales have a better showing than the United States. The average rate in this country over a recent period of years is 11.7.

The only reason why America does not lead the world in health is because the people do not take advantage of their opportunities. The climate throughout the country is healthful. The American medical profession is as competent as any in the world, and this country has more doctors per capita than most nations. Certainly, Americans have more money to spend on health than any other people. These facts force the conclusion that the people as a body have not yet learned properly to evaluate health.

"If health were sought as intelligently and as eagerly as most people seek money," says Mr. Bowers, "there is no question that the average span of life could be greatly extended." He might also have added that suffering and disease during the average life might be remarkably diminished. Many thousands suffer unnecessarily from malaria, smallpox, diphtheria, yellow fever, tuberculosis and dozens of other diseases. Many who do not contract infectious maladies allow their bodies to be weakened by minor ailments so that they fall easy victims to pneumonia, influenza and similar diseases.

The medical profession has made remarkable progress in conquering disease. But conservation of health is still a neglected enterprise. Dr. Louis I. Dublin has found that all types of public health agencies, official and private, State and Federal, spend less than $1 per capita on public health service. Expenditure of $120,000,000 per year for the preservation of the health of a Nation as large as this one is woefully inadequate. Individual expenditures in the interests of health are almost negligible. The cost of curing disease and restoring health is a large item, beside which the amount spent for health preservation shrinks into insignificance.

The economic value of health and long life should be sufficient to focus attention on this problem. Since 1900 the average life span has increased more than ten years. Dr. Dublin estimates the economic value of this additional period of productivity to be $1,400 per person. By a similar method Mr. Bowers concludes that $6,000,000,000 worth of human life is being wasted in this country every year. The needless sorrow and hardships occasioned by this loss are incalculable, but they are none the less real. When the public begins to sense this loss, a new interest in health preservation may be expected.

"THE REPUBLICAN MUDDLE"

From the Boston Transcript.

The scintillating George H. Moses and the less ebullient but no less keen Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, address themselves respectively to the (probably) assigned subject, "The Republican Muddle," in the hallowed columns of the March Atlantic Monthly. The editors of that sterling magazine introduces their contributions with the remark that they are "two of the party's ablest and shrewdest leaders, who offer a political forecast which goes to the root of our party system;" and as Senator Moses labels his composition "Sense for Republicans," and Senator Reed boldly discourses upon "The Future of the Republican Party," we are encouraged to hope that the application of one to the other may justify the editor's complimentary analysis. However remote this suggested possibility, that sense and party management may go hand in hand, we are constrained to take the two articles together like a Seidlitz powder, with a serene trust that in the resulting effervescence we may discover something of cheer.

Senator Moses finds, as one of his examples, that in its final form as the Senate gave it, the tariff bill was far better suited to the conditions Mr. Hoover had in mind "when he made his rash promise to Senator Borah," but this result was in spite of and not because of the coalition, of which the senator says: "It is difficult to describe this group; even my own biological allusion to them has been criticized as inaccurate," for they changed every day.

Senator Reed has not so light a touch, and he pens this thunderous paragraph: "At the present time an avowed Republican may oppose his party's candidates, attack their character and motives, and upset their campaigns, may ridicule or villify a Republican President and his Cabinet and vote against his every recommendation, yet by shrewd appeals to sectional or occupational prejudice obtain by popular vote a renomination for himself which no convention of true party men would dream of giving him. * * * Not court-martial but promotion awaits the soldier who shoots down his own comrades." He justifies all this, the senator says, by proclaiming his own moral superiority, and many of his home-town folk are gullible enough to accept the explanation. Mr. Reed does not look for new parties and he does not think prohibition can be an issue on which new party alignments will be created. However, the fact that the dividing issues are now faint gives the Pennsylvania senator no reason to believe that this state of affairs will continue indefinitely, and he voices the thought that, as in the past, the Republican party will advocate that solution which best conforms to American common sense and patriotism.

If the New Hampshire senator dismisses the coalition with a redistilled and more deadly wisecrack than his first, his squirming victims may find solace in the opposition camp. In many States, he says, the so-called Republican organization "is a mere shell, made up of men who are dead on their feet." They resent new blood and their stock questions are, "How much and how soon?" Unless these State organizations can be rejuvenated and revamped, "we shall be in a bad way next year."

Well, these two experts have about completed their inquest. Mr. Moses is explicit in declaring for reorganization and that the "senselessly bitter primary contests must be reduced to a minimum," but Mr. Reed exhibits the apparently hopeless case of the party in many States in his reference to self-made moral superiority and gullible constituencies. Senator Moses concludes that "we shall muddle through some way," and Senator Reed can say nothing more cheerful than that "that is the way our forefathers solved some of their toughest problems."

POST HASTE.

This month marches in with a sheepish air, but we may find later it's lion.

The campaign to refund and abolish interest on the bonus probably will not start until next week.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago, accompanied by the mayor-elect, was a Washington visitor last week. Friend Capone didn't even go to court until Big Bill's case was decided.

Bobby Jones has arrived in Hollywood to make his picture on "How I Play Golf." The serial, "Bobby Plays Golf—and How!" has been running for years.

Gangster maxim: Maxim silencers speak louder than the law.

The veterans might be reminded of the story of a darky soldier returned from the Philippines, who went to his local bank to get his old $10 deposit. "Gawd, man," said the cashier, "de intrust done et dat up long ago."

Commander Espinosa "was" aid de camp to the President of Cuba, but with the accent on the cong.

"How can I make my hands soft?" "Immerse them in warm, soapy water in the sink three times a day and give mother a rest."

Another result of the proposed Jayhawker oil embargo law is that it would so increase prices that fuel oil could no longer compete with coal. It would mean back to the shovel and the ash can.

Commissions and decorations are not purchased in the American Army, but some of the vets can now afford a Chevrolette.

Nearly 200 stations have been engaged to broadcast the latest in bridge lessons. Some contract!

While somewhat disappointed that Queen Mary's edicts on court appearance refer only to costumes, it may be for the best that no mundane ruler undertake the ignoble experiment of altering the human frame divine.

"The majority is always right!" But then, you know, "all generalizations are untrue—including this one."

CANNED WORMS.

Wall street has followed the growth of the canning industry with interest for years and has come to regard it as "depression-proof," says the Wall Street Journal. One reason for this is the variety of uses constantly being developed for tin containers. It remained for an enterprising individual in California, however, to develop one of the most unique uses for tin containers. This man operates a "worm farm" and cultivates the soil in a manner conducive to the health and welfare of worms. His knowledge of their requirements is amazing and he has seen in their squirmings some evidence of recognition of him at his approach. The enterprise is purely commercial, for the man packs the worms in tin containers with sufficient moisture and food to keep them alive for 90 days and ships them to a fairly extensive clientele of anglers for bait.

A GOOD MEMORY DIES.

"Well," said St. Peter at the gate,
"Your name, sir?" He replied,
"I'm Henry Wise, just seventy-eight
In years the day I died,
And I knew Shakespeare through and through,
And always took his words for true.

"I sat with Plato many a night;
His language I could quote,
And much that Spencer used to write
I rattled off by rote.
I had a marvelous memory
Crammed full of ancient poetry."

"That's not enough!" St. Peter said.
"You lived to memorize.
With borrowed stuff you filled your head,
But what thought Henry Wise?
Forget the books upon the shelf
And tell me what you thought yourself

"Were you so wrapped in borrowed plumes
That never year by year
You dared to quit those ancient tombs
And let yourself appear.
Could you not fashion or devise
One thought to speak for Henry Wise?"

To Make an Intelligent Choice of Soil, First Decide What You Wish to Raise.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

ONE great need of our times is prison reform.

The need is recognized almost universally, but little is accomplished or attempted because nobody with authority seems to know what should be done or how to go about doing it.

That being true, it is obvious that nothing can be done until those who see the need of reform agree on a standard of excellence to be achieved by it.

If you should ask a boy of ordinary intelligence how a certain machine should be constructed, he would answer: "What do you expect the machine to do?"

To discover how a prison should be arranged, first determine the purpose of imprisonment.

If the sole purpose of prisons is to punish criminals, our present penal institutions require no reform. They provide punishment in abundance.

But if society imprisons law breakers only to protect itself and reform them, the present system is obviously wrong and the method of reform is equally obvious.

Because one criminal is a vicious and depraved enemy of society, unwilling to mend his ways, and another is a repentant victim of circumstances, it is unwise and unjust to treat them as equals. The "punishment" should fit the criminal, not the crime.

Because one criminal is a professional and another is a youth serving time for his first offense, it is criminal folly to make them intimate associates. A youth in prison, lonely, discouraged and resentful, is easily victimized by the class hatred that makes the ordinary penitentiary a school for crime. Prisoners who can be salvaged should be kept with others of their kind, free of every degrading influence.

Because mental health depends in large measure on physical health, it is wrong to crowd criminals in dark, evil-smelling and insanitary cells of steel and stone. They should be out-of-doors in the clean air and sunshine.

And because idleness leads to mischief, in prison as elsewhere, it is unwise and unfair to give prisoners no employment to relieve the boredom of their age-long days. They should have work, and by working should pay for their keep and perhaps provide bread for their dependents outside.

Stone walls and iron bars do not reform men, nor are these necessary to protect society.

The tiger is an enemy of man. When captured, it must be kept in a strong cage until it dies. But it does not follow that other wild creatures, easily tamed and comparatively harmless, should be denied the open range necessary to keep them fit.

Many wild creatures can be tamed by kindness—none by means of brutality.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

The Minority-Majority.

New York Times.

With oil—in the form of the proposed embargo measure—troubling instead of soothing the waters of their discourse, most of the Republicans of the House held their "conference" at Washington and consigned their future to Providence. There are enough insurgents in their own ranks to make renomination of Mr. Longworth for Speaker and Mr. Tilson for leader of the Seventy-second House little more than a gesture.

The Democrats, too, have their troubles. These were sufficient to persuade Leader Garner to postpone their party caucus indefinitely. Northern and Eastern representatives, examining the committee lists, had begun complaining that all the important chairmanships would go to the South under the seniority rule. Great minds of the party could not determine whether the Democratic party should accept House control with insurgent Republican assistance. The easiest thing to do was to postpone, and the long-drawn sigh of relief when Mr. Garner announced his plan was stifled only by the report that National Chairman Raskob has called a meeting of his committee for March 5.

These shifts and uncertainties on the part of the minority-majority and the majority-minority make the shadow of the Seventy-second Congress. Not for years will there have been such a floundering, leaderless body. The balance of power may change every day on every issue, and presidential politics will fairly scatter monkey wrenches in the cogs of both party machines.

Muscle Shoals, War Baby.

Chicago Tribune.

Muscle Shoals was a war baby and a rich one, just a little bit illegitimate, but that in war time was nothing to cavil at. The Federal stork dropped it in Alabama and it was the means of bringing a lot of money to a region of deserving Democrats. As a war measure nothing came of it, but that could be said of a great many war measures. It was a handsome appropriation judiciously placed in a Southern river and highly moral in its purposes, an addition to the national defenses. After the war an expensive child was on the hands of the Government. Henry Ford was willing to take it and almost got it. Mr. Ford was in high repute, but criticism found that even he was being a bit too tight with the Government. That deal fell through, and since then the Senate radicals have been playing with the baby, now a nuisance to everybody.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Nations Should Agree Upon Gold and Silver Ratio for Money and Do It Quickly.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems impossible to discuss the silver question, which involves the welfare of a billion people in the Far East, without revisiting the heresies of free silver at 16 to 1. It should be understood once and for all that no single nation standing alone can make fiat money real money or establish by law the ratio of silver to gold. The Gresham law will surely operate and the cheaper money drive out the superior coin. The only way to make the Gresham law inoperative is for all the nations to agree.

The gold standard is established in this country, and now that it is firmly fixed should be let alone. But the big silver question involves people who for thousands of years have used silver as money. Many of these people still use the loin cloth, and anything like cheaper currency or check money is out of the question. The haste of gold standard fanatics to put India, China, Mexico and the South American countries on a gold basis has brought a crisis in silver, causing it to be dumped as a commodity, abruptly reducing the value of their silver coins to about one-fifth their face value.

Great masses of these people, many of them just waking up to the desire to purchase American-made goods, have been impoverished. Therefore to make the Gresham law inoperative and to restore to these people the former and prevailing ratio it is imperative that some leading powerful nation like our own call a conference of all the nations to agree on a fixed ratio.

Inasmuch as the Mexican dollar was for years current in the East at the rate of two Mexican dollars to one gold dollar of the United States, that rate could well be agreed upon.

But it should be done speedily, otherwise the fancied return of prosperity which Wall street is now indulging in, will be short-lived.

JEREMIAH JOHNSON.

Are Poorly Written Laws to Blame for the Immunity of Criminals?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The fact that the law is not strong and effective enough to put murderers and gang leaders in jail for life is a puzzle to millions of laymen. As plain, law-abiding Americans, whose familiarity with the niceties of jurisprudence is necessarily limited, they must accept the situation as in the nature of a "necessary evil."

But is it? As a mere layman, my own idea is that the fault lies, to a considerable extent, in the law-making. And in saying this I have reference simply to the one use of words.

The talkative politician who becomes a legislator does not necessarily know how to write. I have a suspicion that the formulation of laws may often be attended by foggy legal verbiage, owing to the inability of such a legislator to express a plain idea tersely.

The framers of our Constitution knew how to handle nice distinctions in phraseology. They knew how to write, and left no loopholes in their handiwork.

It may be easier to be certain in the enactment of fundamental provisions than is always the case in regard to specific laws. But the fact that arch-lawbreakers are today openly and safely treating the law with contempt makes it look as if there is a weakness somewhere in the law itself.

Gen. Pershing's Tribute to the Old Tenth Cavalry (Colored).

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the graceful things that Gen. Pershing has done in the book on his World War experiences is to add his refutation to the calumnies against the conduct and service of American colored troops in France.

Enemy propaganda spread reports in this country that colored soldiers were being placed in the most dangerous positions and sacrificed to protect white troops. At the time of this report the only colored combat force in France, the Ninety-second Division, was in a quiet sector, and Gen. Pershing reports that he had seen them and they were in fine spirits and keen for active service.

These very men serving in France were indignant at the false reports that they were unjustly treated, and did all in their power to counteract the impression caused in the United States.

Gen. Pershing pays this tribute: "My service with colored troops in the Army had left a favorable impression in my mind. In the field, on the frontier and elsewhere they were reliable and courageous, and the old Tenth Cavalry (colored), with which I served in Cuba, made an enviable record there. Under capable white officers and with sufficient training, colored troops had always acquitted themselves creditably."

C. J. FOSTER.

Senator Watson's Kind Impulse Made the Occasion of Rude Remarks by a Black Republican.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, introduced a bill in Congress for the appropriation of $150 a month for some one to lead Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, who is blind. The senator from Indiana means well, and it is a very kind act on his part for the benefit of a fellow colleague, but I think it would be much better if all the members of this once august body were handcuffed to each other for the purpose of being led by the able senator, Jim Watson himself. With the adoption of such a plan, maybe the "upper" house would redem itself in the eyes of the public.

"PALLADIANT"

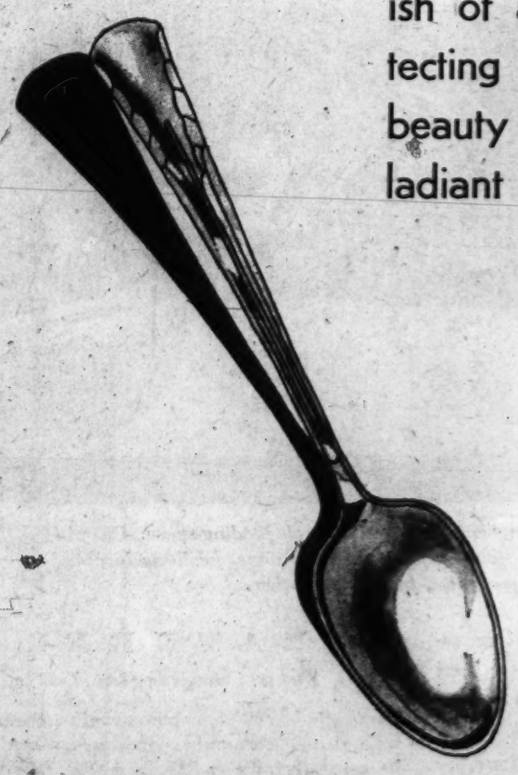
The New Sterling Silver That Will Not Tarnish

Here in International's Minuet and Orchid Patterns

Here is sterling silver with a lasting protection against tarnish. You need never rub nor polish it. The occasional washing such as you give china or glass will keep Palladiant sterling as beautiful as when originally bought.

Since sterling silver first came into use, thousands of hours have been spent in the weary work of removing tarnish—but this is unnecessary now. All those things which tarnish silver—salt, eggs, olives, mayonnaise, mustard, rubber, coal gas—fail to mar the soft, lovely luster of International Sterling with the new Palladiant finish.

Palladiant is a process which gives to International Sterling a protective finish of a precious platinum metal—a metal that will not tarnish. Besides protecting the silver from tarnish, the finish has a rich platinum-like tone. The beauty of sterling becomes even more striking with Palladiant. See Palladiant sterling silver in the Orchid and Minuet patterns on display here.



Palladiant Sterling is Better Made

The Palladiant process uses more-than-ordinary finishing pressure, so more care must be used in making sterling pieces which are to be Palladiant finished. Palladiant finished sterling is better in every way.

Palladiant Sterling is Not Expensive

The cost of Palladiant finished pieces runs from $5 to $10 additional per dozen for the flatware and from $3 to $15 additional for the hollow ware, according to the pieces—a small price to pay for lasting protection against tarnish. In fact, these additional charges for Palladiant sterling are about equal to the lowering of prices made last Spring—so, you can buy Palladiant sterling which will always remain beautiful for about the same price paid a year ago for the old type of sterling.

"Twentieth Century program for the treatment of juvenile delinquency" will be the subject of Dr. Van Waters' talk.

Dr. Eastabrook Will Open His Country Home

Residence in Catoctin Mountains to Be Occupied Soon.

Dr. Leon Estabrook, former director of the world census for agriculture and recently assistant director of the scientific department of the United States Department of Agriculture, will leave Washington next week on an indefinite leave of absence and open his country home near Shookstown, Md., in the Catoctin Mountains.

Dr. Estabrook will not sever his relations with the Department of Agriculture, but will lay aside duties in Washington to devote himself entirely to life in Frederick County.

Born in Illinois, Dr. Estabrook's early life was spent in Texas, where he received his education. Twenty-two years ago he became affiliated with the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, after being engaged in agricultural work in various departments. Dr. Estabrook visited practically every foreign country and received recognition for his studies among foreign nations. In 1922, he went to Argentina, where he spent two years organizing a statistical department for the Bureau of Agriculture and upon completion of the project received a medal and other forms of tribute.

He returned to the United States and was chosen to conduct the worlds census for agriculture, with headquarters in Rome. He spent five years on that project, the most important of his many activities. For the past year he has been assistant director of the scientific department of the Department of Agriculture.

Dr. and Mrs. Estabrook have rented their Washington home. They have frequently visited Sunny Hill Farm, their home in Frederick County, but have remained only for a day or two at a time. Dr. Estabrook spent several summers in West Virginia and Maryland and became so pleased with that section of the country that fifteen years ago he purchased a farm. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Estabrook, and his sister, Mrs. Nellie Winchester, live near Shookstown.

Mrs. Frank M. Bingham Is Visiting Here.

Mrs. Frank M. Bingham, of St. Paul, is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. William H. Hobson, U. S. A., at their home, 1569 Forty-fourth street northwest.

Mrs. Schaellkopf To Return to City.

Having only recently arrived in Madrid, after a long visit in this country, Mrs. Walter Schaellkopf, wife of the second secretary of the United States Embassy in Spain, has received news that she must return to Washington, where Mr. Schaellkopf has been ordered for duty at the State Department.

Mrs. Schaellkopf came to the United States early last autumn to place her son, Walter, jr., in school. She visited Washington to supervise the alterations being made on a house, 4701 Macomb street, purchased some time ago with the idea of establishing a permanent residence for the family in this country.

Mrs. J. A. Hull To Return to City in April

Wife of Retired Army Official En Route From Manila.

Mrs. John A. Hull, after spending several months in the Philippines, is en route to Washington and will arrive here some time next month. Her house on Massachusetts avenue is being opened in preparation for her return.

Gen. Hull, former judge advocate general of the Army, has been serving as legal adviser to the Governor General of the Philippines since his retirement from the Army. Mrs. Hull joined him in Manila early in the fall. On her return to Washington she will be accompanied by their young son, John Bowler Hull.

An older son, Lieut. Charles Bowler King, U. S. A., is now stationed at Fort Washington and the third of the trio, Ludlow Bowler King, is now living in Oklahoma. His engagement to Miss Katherine Dillinger Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Morsell Hopkins, of Baltimore, was announced last fall. Mrs. Hull's sons all bear the name Bowler, which was her maiden name. Her father was a pioneer in Oklahoma and it was a tribute to him, as well as to his daughter, that Mrs. Hull was invited to unveil the monument to "The Pioneer Women" when it was dedicated in Oklahoma last summer.

Col. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien will entertain at tea next Sunday afternoon at their suburban home, Estabrook.

Senator and Mrs. Guy D. Goff were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by the members of the West Virginia delegation in Congress at the Shoreham Hotel.

Among those in the company were Senator and Mrs. Henry D. Hatfield, Representative and Mrs. Carl G. Buchmann, Representative and Mrs. Frank L. Bowman, Representative and Mrs. John Wolverton, Representative and Mrs. Joe L. Smith, and Representative and Mrs. Robert L. Bogg.

Hydes Guests Of Honor at Hotel Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. McKelvie Hosts to Members of Farm Board.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde were the ranking guests at the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. McKelvie last evening at Wardman Park Hotel.

The other guests were members of the Federal Farm Board and their wives, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles Teague, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mr. Alexander Legge.

Also Miss Clara Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Christianson, Mr. William Shilling, Mrs. Iantha Sellers, Mrs. McKelvie's mother and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Williams.

Representative-elect and Mrs. A. J. May left yesterday for their home in Prestonsberg, Ky., after passing some time in Washington.

Economical hauling for every purpose

The Panel Body. 1½-ton chassis. Wheelbase 131½ inches. A strong and handsome body, with ample loading-space. Outside panels are of steel; inside construction of wood. Double rear doors, opening almost flush with the sides, facilitate loading. An excellent choice for hauling goods that require full protection from the weather.

FOR EVERY business purpose, there is a Ford truck that can ably do the hauling. No matter what the material may be, whether the trips are long or short, the loads heavy, bulky, or light, or if the ground to be covered is paved highway, or rough, rutted and hilly — the Ford offers a choice of bodies and equipment that specifically adapt it to the work.

With the Ford 1½-ton truck, there is a chassis with either 131½ or 157-inch wheelbase. High or low rear-axle gear-ratios are optional. Dual rear wheels are available at small additional cost. Bodies may be equipped with open or closed cabs. There is a large selection of standard bodies, both for the Ford truck, and for the delivery-car, which uses the same chassis as the Model A Ford car.

In addition, bodies and equipment for every purpose, designed especially for Ford chassis, are available. Fitted with a standard body, or with any of the special types, the Ford truck offers ample speed and power, strength, reliability, long life, safety, and economy. In every type of service, its low first cost, and low cost of operation and maintenance, help materially to reduce the cost of hauling.

THREE new programs will be introduced over Washington stations tonight.

A series of twelve weekly broadcasts, featuring artists of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera Companies, will present first Beniamino Gigli, tenor (WMAL, 8:30 p. m.).

A symphony orchestra, composed mostly of New York Philharmonic musicians, under the direction of Wilfred Pelletier, will be a weekly attraction. The sketch, "Pennzoil Pete," long on the WJZ network, will be brought in locally through WRC, 8:15 p. m.

Hawaiian music will be featured in a weekly program inaugurated over WMAL, 5:30 p. m.

Latin-American music, played by the United Service Orchestra of 110 musicians, may be heard through NAA at 9 o'clock this evening from the Pan-American Union. The orchestra is made up of members of the Marine, Army and Navy Bands. The last half hour of the concert will be transmitted by WRC also.

James J. Walker, New York Mayor, recently declined an offer which would have made him one of the highest-paid broadcasters in the business.

STATION WMAL has been incorporated under the name of the M. A. Leese Radio Corporation, with M. A. Leese president and treasurer.

This gives rise to further speculation as to whether or not WMAL is to be gobbled up by Columbia, as has so frequently been reported.

Skowhegan's best known citizen, Seth Parker, is in town today, accompanied by all the members of his radio cast, for the second of three appearances to benefit the Central Union Mission. Tickets for the show at Constitution Hall at 8 o'clock this evening are on sale at the mission. The third benefit will be staged March 16.

THE English comedienne, Nina Gordon, sister of Westell, of the "Capitol Family," will contribute real English atmosphere to a London night club scene tomorrow evening (WMAL, 8 o'clock).

Former leading soprano of the British National Opera Company, Rachel Morton, will be heard in the Wednesday evening concert (WMAL, 10:30 p. m.). She will be assisted by a symphony orchestra under the baton of Eugene Ormandy.

DUE to stations being able to receive more money for broadcasting from records the NBC is considering the proposition of raising the rate of $50 being paid to associated stations for each of their commercial programs broadcast.

No NBC chain program now brings more than $50 to the station broadcasting it. This has caused dissatisfaction to the local stations which are frequently able to sell their time for considerably more than that to those who send their performances to them on records especially prepared for broadcasting.

By way of further meeting this competition electrical transcription, as record broadcasting is called, is to be tried out by the NBC on an experimental basis. The Radio-Victor Co. will make the records which, however, will not be sent out over a network but broadcast by individual stations.

Columbia sometime ago acquired the Judson Radio Program Corporation which manufactures records for broadcasting purposes.

FROM the Pathfinder Magazine: "During a farm program over the air recently the bray of a jackass was broadcast so realistically that the next day the studio got several hundred letters wanting to know the name of the new barytone!"

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sweetland

THE MAN-IN-THE-MOON

AN OLD LEGEND TELLS US THAT A MAN WAS CAUGHT STEALING FAGGOTS ON THE SABBATH. IN PUNISHMENT, HE WAS TRANSPORTED TO THE MOON TO CARRY A BUNDLE OF FAGGOTS ON HIS BACK THROUGHOUT ETERNITY. HE IS THE MAN-IN-THE-MOON WITH A BUNDLE ON HIS BACK.

TWO-BITS

SPAIN'S PESO, ROUGHLY EQUIVALENT TO OUR DOLLAR, ONCE BORE A BIG FIGURE 8 ON ONE SIDE TO INDICATE THAT IT WAS EQUAL TO EIGHT REALES. ENGLISH SAILORS CALLED THE COIN EIGHT BITS. THAT'S WHY A HALF-DOLLAR IS FOUR-BITS AND A QUARTER IS TWO-BITS.

SILOS

BEFORE OUR HALF-CIVILIZED ANCESTORS BUILT BARNS TO STORE GRAIN, THEY DUG PITS FOR THAT PURPOSE. THE CELTIC TERM FOR SUCH PITS WAS "SIOL GHAI" WHICH MEANT GRAIN CAVE. WHEN BARNS WERE BUILT, THE PITS HELD ANIMAL FODDER, SO OUR COWS GOT THEIR SILOS.

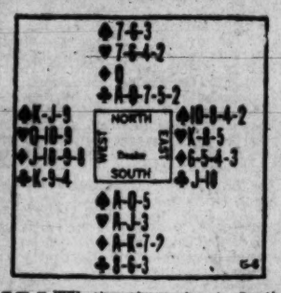
Work's Radio Bridge Game

AN EASY HAND THAT WENT WRONG.



WITH the above hand South would bid one No Trump at Auction Bridge and obtain the Contract; but it was played at Contract and at that game South was just short of a two No Trump bid. If the Clubs were stopped, a 17-count would justify that bid; but with no stopper in Clubs, the 18 count is one short even though the unstopped suit is composed of three cards. However, the contract was three No Trumps because North raised to two on his count of 10; and South bid three. (Two of North's points were for a five-card suit headed by two of the three top honors.)

West led the Jack of Diamonds. North won with the singleton Queen and Declarer tried to put South in so that the Clubs could be led and finessed; North led a Spade but West won with the King. A second Diamond was led by West and won by South, who led a small club, North finessing the Queen. This was successful, but Declarer then very foolishly led North's Ace of Clubs and after that all he could make was one Spade, one Heart, one more Diamond and two Clubs.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The hand could have worked out successfully in three ways. North could have led back a losing Club after the Queen of Clubs won, giving up that trick but ensuring the establishment of the long Clubs while South still had a Club to lead; or Declarer, leading a Club from South, could have played a small Club instead of the Queen from North on the first round. The third plan—and probably a safer play than either of the others—would be to lead a small Club from North to trick 2; safer because it would not have risked aiding the adversaries in establishing Spades. Declarer must lose one Club trick in any event, and would lose two if East held the King; he might as well lose the one before the finesse as after it.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"PISCES."

IF March 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:45 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date favor those who are engaged in doing constructive work, and it will be an excellent time for negotiations and transactions which require brisk and forceful handling. It can not be described as a "safe" time for speculation.

Children born on this March 2 will be pliant, affectionate and rather indolent. Their natures will be sweet, but their dispositions weak. In order to do any good for themselves, they will have to experience the urge of necessity. So long as they can exist, they will not be very anxious to live.

If you were born on March 2, you possess an indomintable spirit, and when there is a "ghost of a chance," never give up until you "give up the ghost." Your horoscope foretells that you will suffer many reverses. These, however, instead of damping your ardor, will only make you more determined to go in and win. Many of your difficulties will be caused by poor vision and the inability to weigh "pros" and "cons." You become imbued with an idea and can only see the successful termination of your efforts and never give a thought to what might happen if the unexpected should occur. Excessive optimism is your besetting weakness.

You have an engaging personality, tolerant views, and a generous outlook. Backed as these qualities are with sound knowledge, you could do much in life if you could look upon both sides of the picture, and reach an impartial decision. You have great confidence in your own ability to succeed where others fail, but you do not take long enough time to find out why they failed.

Your disposition always charms and never ilenate. Your temper is under control at all times. You never bear a grudge, and are charitable—even to those whom, in justice, you could claim to be your enemies. If mated with one born either in the month of December or August your home life holds out a prospect of considerable happiness, as such a union will bespeak mutual affection and forebearance.

Fashion Interprets the Mode

Black faille afternon dress worn over a pale yellow satin blouse. (Designed by R. Dalmau, Paris.)

Paris, March 1.

YOU may read all you want about this, that or the other color that is smart or going to be popular for spring or summer * * * Yes, I know, even I have made some predictions * * * but I'll tell you right now that there actually is no one color that is any more popular than any other. To be completely smart you must wear that color that one can scarcely define as a color * * * a material or a weave that bordered on this or that tone or shade, but doesn't say it out loud.

Of course, there are some definitely smart colors for trimming, always used very sparingly, too. Yellow and green, for instance. And then there is any amount of black, and any amount of white, and a fair amount of soft sort of off-pink—especially for blouses and collars and cuffs. Then there is the mauve, which isn't really mauve, but more or less of an off-pink shade, which I've already mentioned as being used in sports wear and more especially in evening wear. Otherwise, there is no especial color that you have to find out whether you can wear or not.

And, oh, yes, I forgot to mention pale blue as being a factor in evening dresses. This is good news for blondes, of course, but it's a rare brunette who can wear a pale blue with impunity!

And navy blue touched with red and white, is smart for certain types of sports wear and tailored wear—don't forget.

* * * *

You wouldn't call it too much of an effort just to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of the Washington Post in order to learn how to make the daintiest spring underthings imaginable, now, would you? And yet that's really the major part of the work involved! For the undies themselves are quite the simplest affairs to make if you're just careful about following the illustrated directions in the leaflet.

* * * *

And there's a dress illustrated for you today which a very famous Latin artist designed for Dah-ray herself! And maybe you think it doesn't take off the years and the pounds, in effect anyway * * * which, after all, is all that we wish, isn't it? There is something so utterly naive about the black faille jumper blouse, especially worn as it is with a far more sophisticated type of a skirt than you would expect—and then the blouse underneath this jumper is so awfully smart in its pale yellow and soft satin color!

And don't overlook the belt, which hangs down inside of the jumper instead of outside as you would expect a well-behaved belt to hang!

* * * *

And there's the pink wool crepe collar and cuff set itself, trimmed with flat bands of black patent leather monogram * * * Oh, yours or his, it doesn't matter!

YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Martin" occurs with great frequency in the earliest English and French documents. It occurs in Germany, also, where its variations are numerous. Some of its commonest German forms are "Marten," "Marthen," "Mertin" and "Merten." This name is generally derived from the Latin "Martinus." "Martinus" was a common personal name meaning "he who is like Mars (the god of war)." As an English name "Martin" has frequently become confused with "Marten" and "Marton." A certain William Martin is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Marten" has come into English through the French, but it is ultimately of Teutonic origin. It was originally given as a nickname because of some supposed resemblance to the marten or weasel.

The family name "Marton" is of English origin. Its source is the old English "mere-tun," and its full significance is "he who lives at the farm near the pool or pond." There are many towns called "Marton" scattered throughout England, and, as usual, a former residence in one of those towns has frequently given rise to the family name. The place-name has the same source as the family name. A certain Symon de Marton is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379.

Although the family name "Wood" most often has the obvious meaning of "he who lives near or in the forest," it not infrequently has a wholly different and generally unsuspected source. The second source of this name is the old English adjective "wod," meaning "mad," "frenzied" and "wild." It was first given as a nickname. Thirteenth century English documents mention a certain Andrew ate Wode and a Peter le Wod.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

NEW PLANTS FOR YOUR GARDEN.

EVERY gardener wants to add at least a half dozen new members to his or her garden family each year. Six new varieties or perhaps only six new varieties of plants of which you already have a supply.

This is the time to go over the catalogues and mentally make your decisions as to just what you will really want when the time comes to place your order.

There are a few outstandingly lovely plants which should be in every garden. For example, in every garden, be it large or small, there should be made a generous use of the modern delphiniums. I refer to the hybrid delphiniums. They are so beautiful and are adapted to the small back yard or the more formal and pretentious herbaceous gardens of a large estate. Their stately spires of exquisite blue, deep purple or softest mauve intermingle with the soft pinks of the sweet Williams and the roses in an indescribably lovely way.

Delphiniums were the sensation of the spring flower shows last season. Their growth starts before the last snowpile has vanished. Early planting will make the strongest blooms. Usually the growers ship the plants balled and burlapped, which means that they arrive in a condition for uninterrupted growth.

Delphiniums do best in a sandy loam, deeply worked and well drained. Note the "well drained," for they resent wet feet. When planting place the crowns two inches, or more, below the surface; spread the roots well and firm the soil about them, being careful to leave no air pockets. If you already have delphinium in your garden be sure to dig around each plant a trowelful of bonemeal. If you prefer using manure, be very sure that it is well-rotted and never permit it to come in contact with the roots of the plants. Manure is so apt to start an attack of root fungus that I think the amateur will have better success by using a moderate amount of pulverized sheep manure and bonemeal for fertilizer. Merely work this into the soil a few inches away from the crown of the plant.

At the third year of growth delphiniums are usually at their best, after which they should be divided. This work should be done in the spring, when growth starts. Especially in soils which are inclined to be wet should the work be done early.

PICKUP IN BUSINESS SLOWLY APPEARING

Coming of Warm Weather Is Cheering Hope of Motor Industry.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Business and trade have come through to the start of the third month of the year still in low gear, but having achieved as much acceleration as is normally expected for the middle and latter part of winter.

February is normally a month of slow progress, and such improvement as there has been in the steel and textile industries has been encouraging, while automobile output has been expanded to a volume exceeding expectations early in the year.

The approach of spring and open weather is expected to lend impetus to motor sales and to building construction. The volume of building as reported for the third week of February showed some shrinkage from the substantially increased amount of the earlier half of the month, but the figures now available indicate that the month will show the normal seasonal increase about 6 per cent over January. Heavy construction projects upon which work is to be started within the next few weeks are extensive.

Improvement in West.

The mercantile reviews have not as yet reported anything very encouraging in the way of pick-up in retail trade, although the past week has seen some improvement in the West and Far West. The [illegible] of Easter has brought a little improvement in wholesale buying, and jobbers state that frequent reorders from merchants indicate that February clearance sales have reduced stocks to strictly hand-to-mouth levels.

The steel industry still suffers from the dearth of orders for railway equipment and rails, but continued improvement in buying by motor manufacturers, and new orders for line pipe and structural material, have caused a further gain in steel ingot output for the ninth successive week. For the Youngstown area alone, some let-down is expected next week. "Iron Age" last estimated the output for the entire industry at 52 per cent of capacity, up 1 point from the previous week. A firming of steel scrap prices was an encouraging development, but less talk is heard of higher prices for finished steel.

In the nonferrous metal markets, copper continues to meet good demand, and a further price increase next week is forecast in trade circles Tin prices have also moved up a little on virtual completion of arrangements to restrict exports from producing countries. Silver has fluctuated uncertainly, after the first impetus of recent recommendations for international action to stabilize the metal.

Tone of Metals.

Despite the fair tone maintained by metals, the past week brought a further sag in aggregate commodity prices, with farm and food products notably lower. The news that the Farm Board would sell 35,000,000 bushels of wheat in the foreign markets was interpreted bearishly and caused reactionary tendencies in wheat futures.

Reports from the textile industry continue of a cheerful tenor. This applies particularly to cotton goods. One of the largest distributors of cotton goods reported last week the heaviest sales on record. Prices of cotton fabrics are firmer. A troublesome development in the woolen industry was a strike in the mills of the largest producer.

A somewhat more cheerful tone to analyses of business conditions abroad has been a gratifying development of late, lending support to the belief that the world-wide depression is at its fag end. Cooperation between the Paris and London money markets and developments leading to the hope that the Franco-Italian naval differences may be shortly composed, have been reassuring. McGraw-Hill's "Business Week" characterizes current conditions in Europe as indicating "a broader upward movement than at any time since the depression began," and points out that unemployment appears at last to be on the wane, particularly in Germany.

Building Gains in Chicago.

Chicago, March 1 (A.P.).—A notable forward stride in Chicago reported building operations is shown for February. S. W Strauss & Co. reported today that a total of 126 February building permits were issued, totaling $7,877,000, a gain of 177.5 per cent over January and 46.5 per cent over February, 1930.

STOCKS END WEEK WITH SAME PRICES

Rise and Fall Is Equally Balanced as Mart Turns Cautious.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—The stock market paused to look back this week.

Prices advanced on two days, and slid back on three (Monday was a holiday), with the result that the general price level, as measured by the index of 90 leading issues, ended the week at the exact spot where it started.

This uncertain see-sawing of prices, coming after a fortnight of vigorous advances, had the earmarks of the distribution of pool holdings to the public, which had its imagination stirred on Monday but the most feverish trading of the new year—5,300,000 shares were traded.

Wall Street Sentiment.

Wall street sentiment, in the main, however, turned cautious rather than bearish. There was an inclination to measure the distance already progressed, and to consider the more gradual uptrend of business.

Speculators have obviously sought to anticipate business improvement rather than go along with it, but since March, in the light of past experience, is likely to see the peak of the normal seasonal upturn of the first half of the year, the business of anticipating at this stage grows a little more complicated.

While the past week has left the aggregate level of prices unchanged, the end of February permits the measurement of the advance for the first two months of the year, which amounts to 17 per cent. As measured from the bottom of the bear market, reached on December 16, share prices have added nearly 25 per cent to their total paper, or quoted value, or more than $12,000,000,000.

Bulk of Activity.

While the amount of investment buying in the early stages of the advance of February was probably in large volume, the bulk of activity of late appears to have been speculative. A survey of more than 30 commissions indicates that some two-thirds of the late buying has been for marginal account.

Low-priced issues, specialties and public utilities have attracted most of the following, while the rails and the so-called pivotal industrials have been almost neglected. Taking price averages for the various groups separately, the utilities actually show a fair gain for the past week, but this was canceled by losses in the industrial and rail groups.

Brokers' loans increased $26,000,000 in the stock market week ended Tuesday, making a three-week gain of only about $80,000,000. This roughly parallels the swelling in loans during the false bull market in the early part of last year, but starting from the lowest level of brokers' loans in more than five years, the upturn has generally been considered small.

Bond Mart Enters March Buoyantly; February Poor

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Having given a disappointing performance in February, the bond market enters March with the outlook considered good by investment bankers, although somewhat obscured by the uncertainty surrounding Treasury financing plans.

The murky atmosphere may be cleared by the Treasury announcement expected tomorrow on its plans for March 15, when it must refund $1,109,000,000 3½ per cent notes. It is expected that at the same time the Treasury will seek some additional funds, possibly as much as $500,000,000, to meet the loans sought by veterans under the Bacharach bill passed last week by Congress.

The Treasury Department has not marketed a long term bond issue since June, 1928, when $399,000,000 3½s were sold, but bankers believe that a portion of its needs will be met with a bond issue this year. To what extent such operations will affect the listed market and new financing is the unknown factor in the present situation.

To a considerable degree the uncertainty had a dampening effect on domestic bonds last week, and also curtailed new bond offerings. The reluctance of investors to make any large commitments at advancing prices was reflected in the narrow irregular movement of corporate obligations. The shifting of interest to the long neglected foreign section gained momentum, boosting some European government and municipal loans to new maximums for the year.

With only four full business days in the week, the volume of new financing shrank to only $19,500,000. New capital provided by bond issues during February proved to be the smallest for a month in recent years and not at all comparable with the $700,000,000 flotations in the first month of the year. While the anxiety of investors over the soldiers bonus and Treasury financing forced investment bankers to delay plans for marketing bonds, it was a mixed blessing as it gave dealers an opportunity to reduce the volume of undigested bonds on their shelves.

The tax exempt market faces the severest test of recent months during the week and probably throughout the month. Sale of $100,000,000 City of New York bonds is scheduled for March 4, after which will come the Treasury financing on March 15.

So far as could be ascertained the bond market ignored the final disposition by Congress of the bonus question, which at the outset caused such a sharp reaction in the price of United States Government obligations.

EXCHANGE OFFER

The Cuban-American Sugar Company

To the Holders of:

First Mortgage Collateral Eight Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, of The Cuban-American Sugar Company:

The Cuban-American Sugar Company hereby offers in exchange for each One Thousand Dollars, ($1,000), principal amount, of the above Bonds, with the March 15, 1931 coupon attached, $590 cash, and, in addition, $500, principal amount, of its First Mortgage Collateral Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, 8% Series due 1936, presently to be issued and hereinafter referred to as the "new Bonds" as distinguished from the bonds now outstanding which are referred to as the "old Bonds". Of the aforementioned $590 cash payment, $500 will constitute payment of principal, $49 will constitute payment of accrued interest to March 15, 1931, and the remaining $50 will represent a 10% cash discount with respect to the $500, principal amount, of new Bonds. Old Bonds, without the March 15, 1931 coupon, may also be exchanged, but the interest represented by such coupon will be collectible only upon presentation thereof.

The new Bonds will be direct obligations of The Cuban-American Sugar Company (hereinafter referred to as the "Company"), and will be issued under a Trust Agreement, with City Bank Farmers Trust Company as Trustee, authorizing the issuance of not exceeding $5,000,000, aggregate principal amount, of bonds, of which $3,000,000, principal amount, will be presently issued as the 8% Series due 1936 and will constitute the sole funded debt of the Company presently to be issued. The new Bonds will be specifically secured by the pledge of the same First Mortgage Bonds of subsidiary companies which are now pledged as security for the old Bonds, which First Mortgage Bonds are now or will be secured by direct first mortgages on practically all of the fixed property now owned or hereafter acquired by the said subsidiary companies. The said fixed property is carried at total book values of over $43,000,000 (of which over $11,000,000 represents land), and at net book values aggregating over $26,000,000, after deducting depreciation. The Trust Agreement will contain appropriate release provisions. The new Bonds will be dated March 15, 1931, will mature March 15, 1936, and will be callable, in whole at any time, or in part on any interest payment date, upon 30 days' prior notice, at 104% of the principal amount thereof if redeemed on or before March 15, 1932, the premium decreasing ½% each six months thereafter; in each case plus accrued interest. Interest will be payable semi-annually without deduction for the normal Federal income tax up to 2%. The new Bonds will be issued in coupon form in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $250, registerable as to principal only.

The Cuban-American Sugar Company is incorporated in New Jersey and controls, through 100% stock ownership, subsidiary companies which own and operate six raw sugar producing properties in Cuba having an aggregate capacity of 2,300,000 bags of raw sugar per annum, and two refineries, one in Cuba and the other in Louisiana, having an aggregate daily melting capacity of 1,875,000 lbs. of raw sugar, of which 1,350,000 lbs. daily capacity is represented by the Louisiana refinery. The two principal raw sugar properties, viz: Chaparra and Delicias, are operated as a single unit and constitute one of the largest sugar estates in the world.

Upon completion of the present financing operation, the consolidated capital structure of the Company and its subsidiaries will be:

	Authorized	Issued

* Loss.
 Price of raw sugar, during the calendar year referred to in the left column.

The loss indicated for the last fiscal year was occasioned by the unprecedented low prices of sugar then obtaining. In previous periods as well the Company has encountered adverse conditions but has nevertheless always paid interest on its funded and other obligations. Its raw sugar properties are among the best in Cuba, and its refineries in Cuba and the United States are first-class.

Since the issuance, in March, 1921, of the old Bonds, of which about $6,000,000, principal amount, are now outstanding in the hands of the public, the Company has paid an aggregate of over $14,000,000 in dividends on its Preferred and Common Stocks, and has increased its investment in fixed assets by about $8,000,000. Upon completion of this financing operation, the new Bonds will be issued at the extraordinarily low rate of less than $1.50 per bag of normal annual output of raw sugar, and the consolidated Net Current Assets of the Company and its subsidiaries (not including planted and growing cane and advances to planters) will amount to substantially more than twice the principal amount of new Bonds outstanding.

This Exchange Offer is occasioned by the fact that, although the Company and its subsidiaries have consolidated Net Current and Working Assets of over $17,000,000, and Net Current Assets (excluding planted and growing cane and advances to planters) of nearly $12,000,000, the management does not deem it wise to draw on working capital to such an extent as would be necessary to discharge the entire amount of old Bonds now outstanding without resorting to any long-time financing. The management deems it proper that the new issue be first offered to the holders of the old Bonds. The Exchange Offer has been underwritten by the Company's bankers who have agreed to purchase from the Company, at 90 and accrued interest, a sufficient amount of the new Bonds to make the plan effective.

Bondholders desiring to take advantage of this Exchange Offer may do so by depositing their old Bonds with City Bank Farmers Trust Company, 22 William Street, New York City, which will issue, in exchange therefor, its Certificates of Deposit, which will be exchangeable on and after March 16, 1931, for cash at the rate of $590 and for new Bonds (when issued) at the rate of $500, principal amount, for each $1,000, principal amount, of old Bonds deposited with the March 15, 1931 coupon attached. Copies of the Deposit Agreement under which the Certificates of Deposit will be issued, may be obtained from the Depositary, City Bank Farmers Trust Company, upon request.

The undersigned reserves the right to withdraw this offer at any time.

Estate Problems Solved No. 4

When there is no Will—

Many a perfectly solvent but encumbered business man's estate has been sacrificed by an inexperienced administrator which could have been saved by an experienced executor and trustee clothed with ample power by a will to carry on the business, borrow money, retain or sell investments and make distribution to heirs without the limitations imposed by law when there is no will.

The more confused and involved your business affairs are, the more important it is for you to make a Will and

JAKE PARALYSIS' BIRTHDAY.

IT will soon be one year since the outbreak of jake paralysis and it is time to take stock of the situation. It seems to be reasonably well established that it was caused by triorthocresyl. This substance is an ingredient of certain varnishes. A manufacturer conceived the pious idea of adding some of it to alcohol, of adding a few other ingredients, and marketing the product under the name of Jamaica ginger. He made business arrangements in various sections of the country under which the product was to appear to be made in many factories and to be loosed on the market at all of them at about the same time.

While the labels varied slightly in the story they told, they were about the same in essentials. The stuff was medicine; it was to be given in about a certain dose, and for about the same disorders. The percentage of alcohol was stated. The sales price was fixed so that a man could get a small sized jug for one at a small figure, as compared with the price of the lowest grade booze. The organization for sales distribution seems to have been magnificently planned. Where the manufacturer fell down was in failing to get proof that his dope was safe.

All of the many thousand cases distributed widely throughout America developed in a period of a few weeks. It could not have been four weeks from the onset of the first case to that of the last. The splendid plans of the organizer went up in smoke within two months after the plan was launched because of this one defect. The government is now trying to get at the man behind the guns. Back of the consumer to the merchant, back of the merchant to the fronts carried in the labels of the booze, back of these fronts to the manufacturer who got up the poisonous dope and who planned the organization for selling it.

Meanwhile, many thousand persons have suffered from partial paralysis for almost a year. Some of them have been able to make a living in spite of their incapacity. Most of them have not. Under rest and the use of massage and passive movements some have improved. Most of them have had no more improvement than could be expected from learning to walk with a set of muscles and nerves not used much, as a rule, in walking. How much they will improve in the second year remains to be seen. Meanwhile, thousands of patients are holding the bag.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS.

Mrs. C. M. M. writes: Why is there no cure, or even relief, from chronic bronchitis?

REPLY.

Some people with chronic bronchitis are cured by residence in a warm, dry climate. A warm, dry climate suits some cases. A moist one suits others. Some are cured by operation. In some there is an asthmatic element which may yield to treatment. Chronic bronchitis is a rather inclusive term. In the group are some cases which deserve the adjective you use, the reasons for the incurability being various.

MARYLAND UNDERDOG AGAINST GEORGIA TONIGHT

Pennant Bug Gnawing on McGraw

Giant Manager Banks on His Reserves in Coming Race.

Pitchers Compare Favorably With Best in League.

(This is the first of a series of first hand Associated Press stories on major league baseball prospects.)

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 1 (A.P.).—Superior reserve strength in the outfield and infield alone will distinguish the New York Giants of 1931 from the McGraw clan that started poorly and finished a strong third in last year's National League race.

John J. McGraw, starting his twenty-ninth year as skipper of the Gohlam nine, is basing his hopes for a pennant on the power of his reserve troops. He harbors a great hope, engendered by the fact that the Giants have finished out of the pennant money six straight years, a McGraw record. But he isn't predicting a championship—only says do that, he says.

Barring holdouts, a subject their portly pilot finds particularly distasteful, the Giants will wade into the race with about the same line-up that appeared in the box scores last September.

Pitchers Compare Favorably.

Their pitching staff, potentially, measures up to anything in the National League; their catching department will be strongly fortified with two veteran backstops; their inner works, with the slugging Bill Terry at first, leaves but little to be desired, and their outfield should be stronger than last season. Not a single player of proved big-league caliber was added to the Giant roster during the winter.

Eight veteran slabsters, six of whom contrived to win more games than they lost in 1930, form the backbone of the Giant mound corps. Heading the array is Fred Fitzsimmons, who turned in nineteen victories while losing seven. Clarence Mitchell, the aged southpaw, with eleven wins and three losses last year; Carl Hubbell, whose left arm registered seventeen wins in twenty-nine starts, and Bill Walker, who finished a busy year with seventeen victories against fifteen defeats, round out a quartet that McGraw is banking on.

Donohue On Hand.

Then there is Pete Donohue, former Cincinnati ace, who couldn't quite break even last year; Joe Genewich, Joe Heving and Herbert Pruitt, veterans all. None of the four were overly successful last season, but McGraw is optimist enough to expect them to do better in the impending marathon.

Heading a promising bunch of new candidates are John Berly, who scored sixteen victories for Rochester last year; Roscoe Shepherd, a 6-foot 6-inch giant who won twelve out of sixteen for Memphis, and Leroy Parmelee, a fast-ball artist who had a trial last year but lacked control. Chief Bender, new mound coach, is putting in much time with Parmelee and hopes to make a winner of the big fellow.

With Memphis Bill Terry at first, Hugh Critz at second and Travis Jackson at short, three fourths of the Giants infield is settled. Freddie Lindstrom, who has been holding down the hot corner, may be shifted to the outfield and Urban Pickering, drafted from Birmingham, where he hit .346 last season, given the post. Eddie Marshall will retain his utility role. Terry will have a fine understudy at first in Sam Leslie, who whammed the ball at a .413 clip for San Antonio last year.

Leach, Ott, Fullis In Outfield.

Fred Leach is a fixture in left field, as is Melvin Ott, who clubbed .349 last year, in right. Charles "Chick" Fullis, injured and out most of 1930, is in line for the center field

Fans of Capital Eager To Express Views of Nats' Prospects

WASHINGTON baseball fans are eager to express their opinion of the prospects of the Washington Club in the 1931 pennant race.

Their eagerness has been revealed almost simultaneously with the announcement that The Post will present six box seats to the opening game April 14 to the fan who best sets forth in a letter to the "Baseball Editor" his or her view of the Nats' chances and the probable make-up of the team.

Despite the fact that the announcement of the contest was first published in The Post only yesterday morning, several replies beat the first mail into the office, having been delivered in person or sent by messenger to The Post's "Baseball Editor."

"Natural" for Grandstand Managers

The contest apparently is a "natural" for the thousands of grandstand managers who are so eager to express their views about the team when the Nats are at home. Through The Post's contest they are given free rein to state their beliefs.

The rules of the contest are simple. The six box seats, which entitle the winner to see the Nats and the Champion Philadelphia Athletics in action in the inaugural contest here, will be given to the fan who best sets forth in an article of not more than 250 words written on one side of the paper, his or her opinion of the Nats' prospects. All letters must be addressed to The Post "Baseball Editor" before the closing date of the contest April 1.

The replies thus far received reveal that the fans have very definite opinions about the club and which players will make up the team this season. Most of them are flattering beliefs in view of the sensational season the Nats enjoyed last year in finishing second to the Mackmen.

But there is much to consider in attempting to expert. Try your hand. All fans are eligible with the exception of Post employes and their families. A prominent board of judges will determine the winner.

Johnson Says Rivals Must Add Hurlers to Beat Nats

Manager Rates Pitching 75 Per Cent of Baseball Defense; Marberry, Near Best Weight, Reports at Biloxi.

By FRANK YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).
Special to The Washington Post.

BILOXI, Miss., March 1.—There is no doubt but what Manager Walter Johnson is taking the Washington Club's pennant hopes seriously and but what he will have his squad ready when the opening gong rings six weeks hence. With no practice session on tap, he and most of his men golfed this morning, but the afternoon developed into a debating contest on all subjects.

After telling his players that he wanted them to have a good time here but that their business comes first and impressing upon them that, even though there is plenty of time, his 1931 training schedule calls for more work than he ever has previously alloted, the Nat leader opened up the pennant discussion.

What Johnson expects of his own team already has been rehashed a number of times, but his comment on how he rates the opposing clubs were quite interesting. The White Sox, Red Sox and Browns hardly were mentioned. Johnson, of course, fears the Athletics and Yankees, but there is a big "if" attached to even their chances, as he sees things. "If they don't uncover some good pitchers, we'll beat them out easier than a lot of people expect," he said. "I've heard it said that pitching is 50 per cent of defense in a ball game, but I've just about reached the conclusion that it's nearer 75 per cent."

Johnson Can Not See Tigers.

One of the players expressed the opinion that the Tigers may prove a surprise in the race, but the Nat leader can not see Bucky Harris' team at all. "Clubs like Detroit and Cleveland are going to knock off the good teams often," he said, "but they lack balance, which is necessary over a long stretch and will have too many off days to give them the consistency needed to be a flag winner."

Johnson then skipped back to the discussion of his own team, calling attention to its uniform strength in all departments. "We'll have substitutes on hand this year almost as good as our regulars," he said. "I know that both Sam Rice and Joe Judge, our only real veterans, may not have as great seasons as they had last year, but, if they need help at any time or are injured, I don't believe that we would be weakened much with their understudies on the job.

Leader Likes Kuhel's Work.

"I like Joe Kuhel's work, both afield and at bat, and I believe Harry Rice would play a great game in right field. With that good arm of his he will stop many a base runner trying to go from first to third on hits to his territory."

Regarding Jack Hayes, the Nat leader raved to such an extent that it is hard to understand why Buddie Myer is due to get the second base assignment. Johnson, in fact, believes that his three utility players will just about "make" his Washington team. One thing is certain, if the Nationals do not win the flag, "Sir Walter" will be just about as disappointed as the average kiddie when he first learns that "there ain't no Santa Claus," for he's looking forward to his team playing in baseball's October classic like a youngster counts the days until Christmas.

Pitcher Fred Marberry, looking to be pretty nearly down to playing weight, arrived here in time for supper tonight, having made the trip from Hot Springs by automobile. Catcher Bill (Pinky) Hargrave, according to Fred, has not taken off enough weight to suit him, and so will remain a little longer at the Spa.

Although not due here until March 7, Sam Rice sent word by Marberry that he wil larrive here tomorrow. The others there, Outfielder Heinie Manush and Harry Rice, are expected to remain for another week. Second Baseman Buddie Myer, who was at the Kansas resort long enough to take a course of its famous baths, has returned to his home in Ellisville, Miss., according to Marberry.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S indoor track carnival scheduled Saturday night at Brookland should throw a big dash of color on the fading local college winter season, a season that for thrills and excitement has set no records.

Basket ball, the main attraction, has failed to stir the customers as in the past. This, no doubt, has been due to the fact that on their home floors the locals have performed rather poorly, as a whole. What has saved the winter season from sinking to new low levels in point of interest has been the exceptionally fine work done by Maryland's basket ball team and Catholic's boxing team.

The Old Line Quintet has packed them in Ritchie Gymnasium ever since the beginning of the year, while the Cardinal mitt slingers have performed three times to crowds of more than 2,000.

The track meet Saturday night is tempting and a capacity audience should be on hand to watch Ray Conger do his stuff in the Ryan Thousand. Owing to the lay-out of the track, the seating capacity of Brookland Gym has been reduced to about 1,500. Indoor track is a sport that local fans really go for, although possibly only because it has been denied them so long.

G. U. Intramural Ring Titles at Stake.

The most exciting intramural event in local college athletic life is to be revived tomorrow afternoon in Ryan Gym at the Hilltop when representatives of the freshmen, soph, junior and senior classes clash for the Georgetown boxing championships. Twice in the past these affairs have been held, much to the delight of the student body and a few outsiders fortunate enough to crowd into the tiny gym. The contestants in Georgetown's intramurals have never been known to "pull their punches."

John O. O'Reilly will direct the tournament as director of intramural athletics. He will be assisted by Charley Fish, Georgetown's former intercollegiate welterweight champion. Fish has been spending his afternoons throughout the winter teaching the title aspirants the intricacies of the sport.

Spring Grid Drills Open At Hilltop.

This afternoon, though the robins haven't yet begun winging northward, Georgetown's footballers commence a two-month period of spring practice. In the absence of Head Coach Tommy Mills, who is visiting several New England cities, the squad of 60 will be handled by Tommy Murphy, freshmen coach. Murphy will be assisted by Frank Kerjes, guard of Notre Dame's 1930 eleven, who is finishing his law course at Georgetown.

George Washington and Catholic will send their gridmen out about March 15. The former plans four weeks of practice and the latter about eight. American and Maryland will stage shorter workouts, while Gallaudet alone will save football until next fall.

"Y" SEEKS OPPONENT.

The Y. M. C. A. quintet seeks a game for Wednesday, Thursday or Friday with any unlimited class team having a gym. Call Lincoln 8513-W between 5 and 7 p. m.

Burgess Best In College Scoring

G. W. Star Averages 12 Points a Game for Season.

Berger Ranks Second; Maryland Tops Local Teams.

SECURING 28 points in his last three games, Forrest Burgess, George Washington's speedy basket sniper, captured individual scoring honors among Capital collegians with a total of 197 points in sixteen games of the 1930-1931 season. The average of the Colonial star was a fraction more than twelve points per game.

Only one other contender for the crown, Del Cosgrove, has yet to complete the campaign, and the Gallaudet flash must do superhuman work in the game against Shepherd College, at Shepherdstown, W. V., on Friday night, in order to catch Burgess. Cosgrove's total today is 164, or 33 behind that of the George Washington player. For the past two seasons the race by topped by Cosgrove.

Berger in Second Place.

In second place is Boxy Berger, Maryland's main cog, who amasses a total of 172 points in eighteen games. This figure does not include the points he has accumulated in the current Southern Conference tournament.

Fourth place is held by Johnny Ringle, of Galaudet, with a total of 142, while immediately behind him is Ed Ronkin, of Maryland, who pocketed 141 points in the same number of games as played by Berger.

Team scoring honors go to Maryland, which collected 604 points while winning fourten out of eighteen games for a percentage of .778. George Washington takes second place with eleven wins and five losses and American ranks third with nine triumphs, as against six defeats. These are the only Capital teams with records of better than .500. Gallaudet can not reach this figure, even if it defeats Shepherd College.

Brugnon, French Net Star, Under Knife for Appendicitis

PARIS, March 1 (A.P.).—An epidemic of appendicitis has struck French Davis Cup tennis stars. Jacques Brugnon, doubles veteran, underwent an operation today, two weeks after Rene Lacoste went through the same experience. Both are lost to the French cup defenders this year.

With both Lacoste and Brugnon out of the picture, Frank will have to pin her hopes for a successful defense on the two veterans, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, and two youngsters, Christian Boussus and Rene de Buzelet.

Borotra, Boussus and De Buzelet will eave for New York on Wednesday to compete in the American indoor championships.

Brugnon was reported oing "as well as could be expected" tonight, but there apeared to be no hope that he would be available for cup play this year. He was the star of the doubles match in the final round of cup play last year, outshining the brilliant Cochet in the victory over John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison.

Lacoste was to leave the hospital tomorrow to convalesce at home.

Cochet Defeats Rogers In Monte Carlo Finals

Monte Carlo, France, March 1 (A.P.).—Henri Cochet, French Davis Cup ace, trounced G. Lyttleton Rogers, Irish giant, 7—5, 6—2, 6—4, in the finals of the Monte Carlo tennis tournament today and thereby enjoyed a good laugh at the expense of the experts most of whom had prophesied his overwhelming defeat.

Cochet had played poor tennis throughout the tournament, barely beating his fellow countryman, Eduard Dupiaix, 8—10, 11—9, 9—7, in the semifinals, but it was the Davis Cup Cochet the experts saw today when the championship was at stake.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MOZART (his full name was Johannes Chrysostomus Wolfgangus Theophilus Mozart) began studying music at the tender age of 3 and a year later was playing minuets and composing little pieces all by himself. Some of these early compositions are still preserved. At the age of 5 he composed a minuet and trio and at 6 he made a tour with his family, playing before all the sovereigns of Germany. In his seventh year Mozart sang, composed and played on the harpsichord and on the organ and violin. In 1766 he astonished the Dutch by his remarkable playing on the largest organ in the world at Haarlem, although then he was but 10 years old.

Jimmy Drexel bowled his first game last October and since that time has been going great guns on the local alleys in Omaha. Jimmy, who just weighs a shade under 70 pounds, averages about 150 a game. He uses a regulation ball with a three-hole grip.

The green-boned gar-fish has a great beak, each jawbone of which is lined with two rows of teeth, turning backward. The entrance to the stomach is also paved with teeth.

NEWS, NOTES OF TRAINING CAMPS

Cubs' Regulars Win 1st Squad Game; Score, 6-4.

AVALON, Calif., March 1 (A.P.).—Manager Rogers Hornsby presented the Chicago Cubs in their first training game of the season today, and a team of regulars overcame the rookies, 6 to 4.

The regulars scored all their runs off Pat Malone, while the irregulars chipped Guy Bush and Charlie Root for two each. Clarence Blair accounted for the first home run of the season, while Vincent Barton slammed out a triple and a single. Errors were plentiful. Jurges and Barton making two apiece and Cuyler, English, Bell, Grimm, Bush, Malone and Blair committing one each.

Chapman Impresses In Yank Camp.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1 (A.P.). Ben Chapman, one of the doubtful members of the New York Yankee's squad, seems to have made a considerable impression on Manager Joe McCarthy by coming to work ahead of time. Chapman turned out with the batterymen in an attempt to win a permanent job as Yankee second baseman.

"I would not care to express myself so early about any player," McCarthy said today, "but I will say he is a better ball player than I expected to see. With his speed and throwing ability I am satisfied he will fill the bill at second base."

All But 2 Macks Due This Week.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 1 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics were excused from regular drill today and most of them put in the time golfing and fishing. Manager Mack expects all the regulars, with the exception of Earnshaw and Simmons, to be here by the middle of the week and he will have two teams practising a few days before the games with the St. Louis Cardinals at Miami next Saturday and Sunday.

Flooded Park Fails To Stop Browns.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 1 (A.P.).—A continuous drizzle kept the St. Louis Browns indoors except for a short time this morning, when the players under the direction of Manager Killifer and Coach Austin warmed up outside the park, which was flooded. Marvin Ferrell, 20, brother of Rick Ferrell, of the Browns and Wes Ferrell, of Cleveland, was signed today by the Browns for duty with Wichita Falls, Tex. Another brother plays with Buffalo.

Syl Johnson Fills Card Slab Corps.

Bradenton, Fla., March 1.—All of Manager Gabby Street's pitchers were accounted for when Sylvester Johnson reached here last midnight and engaged in his first practice today. He is the seventeenth player in the squad, which will be augmented tomorrow by the arrival of the main crowd of infielders and outfielders.

There was more rain today, but it held off long enough to permit the players to hold a workout in the morning.

Frankie Frisch and Chick Hafey still are holding out for more pay.

Shields, Ex-Yankee, In Phils' Uniform.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 1 (A.P.). Ben Shields, former Yankee left-hander, who is attempting to come back after three years of inactivity, is showing up well in training with the Philadelphia Nationals. In 1926 Shields was one of the brightest prospects among the Yankee pitchers. He was stricken with the flue and ordered to take an outside job in which no strenuous exercise was involved.

"I drove a taxi in Richmond," Shields said, "and didn't even see a baseball for two years. I feel good now and hope to stay in the game."

Shaute Reports Arm Okay; Robins Hopeful.

Clearwater, Fla., March 1 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robbins today welcomed the last free Sunday they expect to have for some time, and a good many of them spent in talking baseball. Joe Shaute, former Cleveland pitcher, was one of the principal subjects of discussion and the Robins agree that he seems to have filled their pressing

Lott-Van Ryn Match Postponed by Rain

Miami Beach, Fla., March 1 (A.P.). Intermittent rains today caused postponement of the Pan-American tennis championship singles finals between George Lott, Chicago, and John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., until tomorrow.

Lott advanced to the finals by defeating Ricardo Tapia, Mexican player, in the semifinal match yesterday, 6—1, 6—2, 6—0. Van Ryn turned back J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., 7—5, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3.

FLORIDA GOLF VICTORY TO SARAZEN

Cooper 4 Strokes in Rear; Winner Is Near Record.

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 1 (A.P.).—Never relinquishing the lead he assumed here yesterday at the outset of the tournament, Gene Sarazen, stocky Italian professional at Lakeville, N. Y., today won the Florida West Coast open golf championship for the second consecutive year.

Sarazen's 72-hole score of 278, the result of rounds of 67, 72, 68 and 71, came within 2 strokes of equaling the record for the event, made in 1923 by Walter Hagen.

Sarazen's victory today earned him $1,000 of the $3,000 prize money, and sent him well up the list of money-winning professionals for the winter campaign.

Streaking along with a fine pair of 69's "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, Chicago professional, seawed up second place with a total of 281 and earned for himself $700.

Four strokes behind Cooper came diminutive Henry Ciuci, Bridgeport, Conn., who added a 68 and 71 today to his 146 total of yesterday to cinch third place and $500.

Deadlocked two strokes further back were Al Espinosa, Chicago; Johnny Farrell, New York, and Denny Shute, Akron, Ohio, and a stroke further in arrears were Joe Kirkwood, New York, and Whiffy Cox, Brooklyn. They in turn led Ralph Kingarud, Fargo, N. Dak., and Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., by one stroke.

THE MONEY WINNERS.

Gene Sarazen, Lakeville, N. Y., 67-72-68-71—278; $1,000.
Harry Cooper, Chicago, 71-72-69-69—281; $700.
Henry Ciuci, Bridgeport, Conn., 71-75-68-71—285; $500.
Al Espinosa, Chicago, 67-73-74-73—287; $200.
Johnny Farrell, New York, 70-75-71-71—287; $200.
Denny Shute, Akron, Ohio, 74-72-72-69—287; $200.
Joe Kirkwood, New York, 73-70-72-73—288; $50.
Whiffy Cox, Brooklyn, 72-75-71-70—288; $50.
Ralph Kingarud, Fargo, N. Dak., 71-72-70-76—289; $50.
Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., 72-73-71-73—289; $50.

New Tourney Champion Assured

Florida, Kentucky in Other Semifinal at Atlanta.

Old Line Five Rates High on eDfensive Exhibitions.

ATLANTA, March 1 (A.P.).—The Southern Conference basket ball championship, held by five teams during the eight years of tournament competition, will pass into new territory Tuesday night. ... ...

None of the four teams reaching the semifinals this year has held the title, although Georgia has been in the next to last round on four occasions, and Kentucky twice. In 1927 Georgia was a finalist, but lost to Vanderbilt.

In its two previous tournament appearances Florida went out in the first round in 1924 and 1928. Maryland advanced to the quarter finals in 1924 and 1927.

Florida will meet Kentucky at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the first of the semifinal games, while Maryland plays Georgia an hour later. Kentucky and Georgia have ben established as the favorites.

Maryland Passing Rated Best.

Sport writers attending the games praise Maryland's passing and floor work as the best in the tournament, but the Old Liners have experienced trouble in winning both of thier early games because of faulty shooting.

Kentucky also has a smooth passing system and many experts believe the Bluegrass cagers have an excellent chance of winning the crown.

In both of its games Georgia was slow in starting and left trailing at intermission time. But the spark of attack always clicks in the last period and the Bulldogs flash ahead.

Florida is as black a dark horse as the tournament has ever seen. The Alligators barely qualified for entrance and were expected to fade out in the first round.

No previous tournament has ever witnessed so many good teams and such close scores. Georgia needed an overtime period to beat Washington and Lee in its first game and every other contest has been close.

Based on tournament records, one of the semifinal games tomorrow is going to be an exclusive affair between offensive teams while the other will be just as select, but between a pair of defensive stalwarts.

Old Liners Star On Defense.

So say the statisticians, who prove, or at least present figures to show, Florida and Kentucky are outstanding goal shooters while George and Maryland are most proficient in keeping the other fellow away from the basket.

The figurers who figure just because they like it, have it down in one, two threes that Florida, by sinking .333 per cent of her chances and won over Tennessee in the quarter-finals did so because Tennessee could hole out but .175 of her chances.

Kentucky won from Duke with .279 per cent of her goal trials made good, while the Blue Devils mustered a lowly .188 per cent.

Maryland, these serious-minded men of figures say, dropped North Carolina wholly by superb activity on the defense. The Old Liners could flip successfully but .094 per cent of goal tries. The Tarheels were a mite better, but only a mile, with .121.

Auburn batted .270 per cent of goal trials against Georgia's .241, demonstrating by figures that a defense has its advantages, if the defensive team at the same time is working offensively.

After permitting guardsmen to lead the scoring the first round of the tournament, the forwards came back strong in the quarter-finals. Four of the first five best goalshooters, to date, are forwards. First on the list is Lewis McGinnis, the Kentucky Terror, with 28 points, 5 ahead of Clemons, of Florida, and 6 in the van of Emmelhanz, Clemons' running mate. The fourth is Bergen, Maryland guard, with 20 pointers.

Eight Clubs Join New Dixie Baseball Loop

Montgomery, Ala., March 1 (A.P.).—From the remnants of three other leagues, the Dixie Association, a new baseball loop was organized here today with at least eight and possibly twelve clubs as members.

Invitations were extended to fourteen cities in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina and Florida to enter the league, organization of which will be completed at a meeting in Columbus, Ga., next Sunday.

Cities invited were Jackson and Meridian, Miss.; Anniston, Selma, Dothan and Montgomery, Ala.; Albany, Augusta, Columbia and Macon, Ga.; Pensacola, Jacksonville and Tampa., Fla., and Greenville, S. C.

The list includes former members of the Southeastern, South Atlantic, Cotton States and Georgia-Alabama Leagues which have been given the privilege of seeking a franchise in another league.

Pete Hyer, of Pensacola, said there was a strong probability that a twelve-club league, stretching from Greenville, S. C., to Jackson, Miss., and Jacksonville, Fla., would be formed.

Newport News Soccer Team Is Winner Here

Braving a steady rain, which kept the crowd down to a handful, Newport News (Va.) Scotch Soccer Team defeated a Scotch team of Washington, 5 to 0, yesterday on Silver Spring Field. Each team was handicapped to the extent of having only ten players. The game was a preliminary to a series for the International Cup.

SUBURBAN FIVES AGAIN FACTORS IN POST TOURNEY

Out-of-Town Clubs in All Divisions

Warrenton Sextet Is Highly Rated in A. A. U. Play.

Pairings, Entries to Be Announced This Week.

SUBURBAN cage teams, which always have figured prominently in previous tournaments, again will be very much in evidence next Monday night when The Post's fifth annual A. A. U. basket ball tournament swings into action at the Tech High School Gym. Of the 97 outfits who will compete in this year's affair, 22 are from Maryland or Virginia.

One-fourth of the entrants in the men's unlimited class, or eight clubs, will strive to win the first title in that division ever to go to suburban team. Thees outfits are the Bliss Electrical School, the Rockville A. A., Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, Richard's Colonials and Fort Washington, of Maryland, and the Quantico Marines, Fort Humphreys, and Virginia A. C., of Virginia.

Judging from the caliber and records of these quintets, Washington unlimited fives will be hard put to uphold the tradition of other tournaments and to retain the 1931 section crown.

Five Suburban Teams In Girls' Class.

It is in the junior girls' section, however, that the entry list is overwhelmingly suburban. Five of the eight sextets in this division hail from outside the confines of Washington, namely, the Rockville A. C., Chevy Chase A. C., Bethesda-Chevy-Chase High School and Hyattsville high School, all of Maryland, and the Alexandria High School, of Virginia.

A liberal sprinkling of suburban teams also is found in every other class. A second Quantico Marine team will compete in the 145-pound section; the Clovers and Boy Scouts, of Alexandria, and the Shipleys, of Hyattsville, are entered in the 130-pound division, and the Charlottesville Boys School, of Charlottesville, Va., nationally known for its midget football teams; the Whitesteon Juniors, of Alexandria, and the Mount Mainier, Md., clubs, in the 115 pound. Another Charlottesville quintet is in the 100-pound division, while the Warrenton, Va., girls will be represented in the senior girls' section.

Warrenton Sextet Formidable.

These Warrenton lassies, incidentally, are considered an outstanding favorite to cop major honors in their division. The Virginians, so far, have gone through a tough schedule with only one defeat. Among the sextets they have trounced are two from Washington, the Eagles, title winners in the 1930 tournament, and the Jewish Community Center outfit. Both of these contests, however, were played in Warrenton.

District A. A. U. officials will make the drawings early this week and the tourney's first-round program will be published as soon as possible. Two sixteen-team brackets are made possible in the men's unlimited class because of the 32 quintets entered.

Weighing in for 100 and 115 pound combinations will take place next Wednesday night from 7 to 9:30 o'clock at the Boys Club. Teams in the 130 and 145 pound section will weigh in on Thursday night at the same hour and place.

Millionaire Winner In French Chase Test

Auteuil, France, March 1 (A.P.).—Millionaire, 5-year-old son of Gros Papa, out of Mezieres, put $2,000 into the Robert Hennessy stakes, a 3-mile steeplechase.

Millionaire reveled in the soft going and won easily from Roi de Thule with Ivry third. The winner paid 5 to 1 in the pari mutuels.

Of the twelve starters, five either fell or refused one of the hurdles.

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

FIVE prominent candidates for the Florida Derby, which will be decided Saturday, the closing day of the Hialeah Park season, will get a public trial today in the fifth race at the Miami track, at a mile, the race being called the Preliminary, for a purse of $1,200. The 3-year-old of Knebelkamp & Morris, SPANISH PLAY, is required to carry top weight of 120 pounds. He won his last two starts at the Fair Grounds, and appears to be the best development of the winter tracks in the 3-year-old division.

GENERAL A, winner of three races at Miami, must pick up 116 pounds today, next top weight. He should draw the finish close.

FIRST RACE—AIR LINER appears best of the maiden 3-year-olds and up which are to start in this race. BALTHASARA is rated second. MATADI should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE—SIBERIA is much the best of these 2-year-olds. He is the gelded son of St. James-Sanberia, which carries the colors of Mrs. George D. Widener, of Philadelphia, and won Friday by five lengths from a good field. He will be an odds-on favorite. WHY MASK appears best of the others for place money.

THIRD RACE—The Florida East Coast purse, third on the program, for older horses, appears a good spot for PRINCETON, which has been running with better horses. CORSICAN has a chance for second money, but some of his recent races have not been up to his standard.

FOURTH RACE—OKAYBEE looks best in the fourth race, the Minola Claiming Handicap. SANDY'S last race was a big improvement, but he may be the contender. GRACIOUS GIFT is tabbed for third.

SIXTH RACE—PERKINS is the class of these. He won his last race as his rider pleased from Scarlet Brigade and others. RAMUS, which beat Mortime and others in his last outing, should be the contender.

SEVENTH RACE—DEA appears best here. DEA was second to Donie last out, and no other horse in this race quite equaled that showing recently. MILL BAY has been running in good form and should take the place money.

W.-L. BASKET PLAY DRAWS WESTERN

D. C. Team Among 18 to Compete at Lexington This Week.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 1.—Eighteen prep and high school basket ball teams, representing the class of eight States and the District of Columbia, have already signified their intention of competing in the eighth annual scholastic basket ball tournament sponsored here by Washington and Lee University next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

By the time the drawings for the first round take place Monday afternoon it is expected that the entry list will be swelled considerably as other teams file their entries.

Eight teams are already in the prep school division. Hargrave Military Academy, Benedictine School, Massanutten Military Academy (1930 champions), Fishbourne Military School, Staunton Military Academy and Fork Union Military Academy are the Virginia teams already entered. Greenbrier Military School, Lewisburg and West Virginia will again bear the colors for the Mountaineer State.

Watauga Academy, Butler, Tenn., is the lone entrant from that State in the prep schol division.

Six Va. Teams in High School Group.

Of the ten high schools entered, Virginia leads with five—Lexington, Norton, Staunton, Buchanan and South Boston. Newport High School, Newport, Tenn., has also entered. Charlotte and Wilson have entered teams from North Carolina. Western High School, of Washington, is bringing a powerful combination, and from the Gamecock State Spartanburg High School, finalists in the State tourney to be decided this week, is bringing another good quint.

Sessions will be run off Thursday night, Friday morning, Friday afternoon, Friday night, Saturday morning and Saturday night, when the winners of the two tourneys, prep and high school, will play for the grand championship.

MARTINSBURG ON TOP.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 1.—The Martinsburg High School Girls' Basket Ball Team gained the top rung of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League ladder here when they defeated the Hagerstown High girls, two time league champions in a fine game, 41-22. Hagerstown has one more league game to play and a win will tie them with Martinsburg for the lead and a play-off game will be necessary.

In the second game the Hagerstown boys, by dint of a fourth-quarter rally, edged out Martinsburg, 31-24.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF TRAINING CAMPS

need for an effective lefthander. Shaute's lame arm, which let him out of the American League, seems to be in good condition and the pitcher says he feels like opening up with some real hurling any time.

Tiger Squad of 33 At Full Strength.

Sacramento, Calif., March 1 (A.P.).—The full squad of 33 players was in the Detroit American baseball camp today with the arrival of five outfielders and six infielders. Manager Stanley Harry's plans to reserve Sundays for rest, unless bad weather interferes with training. So there was no workout today.

Pirates Drill Hard; Practice Tilts Soon.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 1 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates settled down to the serious business of brushing up for National League pennant racing today.

With all but Paul Waner, Adam Comorosky, Steven Swetonic and Larry French on hand, Jewel Ens sent his squad through the first real workout of the training season, and then decided to take things slow for a while by holding but one practice a day, instead of the two he had planned. That schedule will be maintained until at least the middle of the coming week. Practice games may start next Saturday.

Two Sessions Daily For Big Giants Squad.

San Antonio, Tex., March 1 (A.P.).—Old Man Weather took another crack at the New York Giants today and did serious damage to the last practice before the day when the complete squade is due to report. A half holiday was scheduled and the one practice was hampered by an early morning rain and cloudy weather about the time the drill was due to start.

By tomorrow Manager John McGraw hopes to have such a big squad that two separate drill periods will be required and he has planed morning and afternoon sessions.

Reds' Hurlers Due To "Let Out" Today.

Tampa, Fla., March 1 (A.P.).—Most of the Cincinnati Reds squad arrived here today to join the batterymen and give Manager Dan Howley command of what begins to look like a regular baseball club, in numbers at least. None of the new arrivals participated in today's workout, but will all don uniforms tomorrow. The batterymen went through a stiff three-hour drill today under a bright, warm sun and, Howley said, would be able to serve up some good pitching to the reminder of the squad tomorrow.

BERKELEY ROVERS WIN.

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., March 1.—The Berkeley Club Rovers defeated the Mercersburg (Pa.) Cossacks on the latter's floor last night, 35 to 23, in a well played contest. The Rovers had been defeated by the same organization previously, 44 to 36, the only defeat on the local floor this season. The Catlett brothers were high point scorers for the locals.

NEW TRAFFIC LAW MAY BRING DRASTIC DISTRICT CHANGES

Act Signed Last Week by Hoover Will Become Law on July 1.

SYSTEM STRENGTHENS REINS OF AUTHORITIES

Death Knell for Bus Depots in the Congested Areas Likely to Sound.

Some revolutionary changes in traffic regulations may result from the passage of the District traffic bill, signed last week by President Hoover. While the new law does not become effective until July 1, District authorities plan to conduct investigations and make preparations for placing the new system into effect as soon as the act permits.

The new law strengthens the authority of both the District Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission and at the same time places a check over both in the form of a joint board composed of both bodies and headed by the Engineer Commissioner.

Regulation of interstate buses that have terminals in the District is now definitely placed in the hands of the Public Utilities Commission. The new law consequently probably sounds the death knell of the bus depots in the congested area of Washington.

Commissioners Confident.

So confident are the utility commissioners on this score that they have instructed the corporation counsel's office to withdraw their appeal in the celebrated Nevins Bus Line case, in which the Municipal Court held that the commission had no authority over interstate buses.

A hearing to determine the best method of moving the bus terminal from the downtown district to the outskirts and in probability one or more centralized depots will likely be held by the utilities body some time this spring. It was previously scheduled when fear was expressed that the traffic measure would not pass at the present Congress.

The question of placing meters on all taxicabs, a move that would almost ruin the cheap independent cabs, will also likely be considered by the Commission under authority given it to regulate all equipment placed on public vehicles.

Revision Is Expected.

As for the District Commissioners, they are expected to revise much of the present traffic code on the basis of recommendations made last summer by the Traffic Advisory Committee. The power of initiating new regulations after July 1 will be entirely in their hands, while the new Traffic Bureau will deal largely with the mechanics of traffic control.

Among the changes which will undoubtedly be considered, though not necessarily adopted, are the abolishment of all-night parking, the elimination of the speed limit in certain areas, the abolishment of the yellow light in traffic signals, and the adoption of the standard Hoover left-hand turn in place of the present rotary turn.

Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, who will be in direct charge of the new traffic system, declined to predict what changes will be made, but admitted that each of the traffic committee proposals and the items of the McClintock report would be given consideration.

Elated Over Passage.

District authorities are elated over the pasage of the traffic bill in view of the controversies that traffic matters always arouse. Corporation Counsel William W. Bride is generally credited with putting the measure through Congress in spite of vigorous opposition and frequent revision. For several weeks Mr. Bride spent a large part of his time at Capitol Hill sidetracking objections as they arose.

To William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, goes most of the credit for drafting the measure. Working with Mr. Bride, he was able to straighten out a tangle that has blocked progress in the control of traffic for several years and definitely establish the division of authority between the Commissioners and the utilities body.

EARNINGS OF 1930 DROP 34 PER CENT

Decline Over 1929 Is Shown to Be Less Marked as Reports Come In.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—A total of 839 companies that have reported for 1930 to date reveals an aggregate net income of $1,954,000,000 or 34 per cent under the record year of 1929.

While each successive week of additional statements had showed the decline from 1929 more marked, the reverse was true last week. The 34 per cent decline compared with a 35 per cent reduction for 130 less companies covered in the report of Standard Statistics Co. a week ago.

However, the statistical organization expects that when the bulk of the returns for 1930 had been made public, the combined net income will represent a 40 per cent reduction from the previous year.

Of the three divisions—industrials, utilities and railroads—the carriers continue to show the most marked slump in earnings. Sixty-nine carriers reported to date indicate 1930 results were 42 per cent below the preceding year, while 83 utilities virtually equaled their 1929 performance. The aggregate of 687 industrials shows a 37 per cent decrease.

"While it is difficult to apply a constructive interpretation to the 1930 earnings performance, it should not be ignored that operations were symptomatic of a condition which is being at least partly remedied by means of inventory write-offs and increases in operating and personal efficiency," Standard Statistics comments.

"Further reductions in costs will undoubtedly aid materially in compensating for a generally smaller volume of sales in the first half of the current year. Specifically, it is our opinion that earnings in the first quarter of 1931 will aggregate somewhat larger than in the last quarter of 1930, but will be substantially below the profits reported in the first quarter of 1930.

"On present indications this generally improving tendency should continue into the second quarter."

MAJORITY CLAIMED FOR DRY ACT REPEAL

H.H. Curran, Prohibition Foe, Says People Are Clearly Against Amendment.

(Associated Press.)

A clear majority of the American people in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment was claimed yesterday by Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition amendment. This estimate was contained in his annual report to members of the association, numbered by him at 360,000.

In it he asserted the Wickersham Commission was guilty of "bald discrepancy" in its prohibition report, and criticized President Hoover for his treatment of the commission's findings.

In reviewing the political events of the last year, Mr. Curran said "nowhere did the prohibition cause advance an inch." He estimated the antiprohibition representation in the House had increased from 76 to 160 in the last two years while that in the Senate jumped from 15 to 22.

Mr. Curran contended the pace of the American people "in their march toward repeal" was "no less steady, but faster." He said nine States containing 26 per cent of the total population had declared for repeal, and that the people "of many other States" are ready to vote for repeal as soon as the question is submitted to them by Congress.

"The public attitude described in the Wickersham report," he said, "had already been reflected in the November elections, which brought out a rousing expression of anti-prohibition sentiment in scores of different localities. Prospects for 1932, in view of these developments, are good."

President Hoover "virtually tore to pieces the painstaking findings and recommendations of his commission."

Modification was described as "an unworkable subterfuge," and "a paltry evasion of the problem of repeal."

FOUR ARE QUIZZED IN VICE PROBE DEATH

the late "Vivian Gordon," on a charge of cruel and barbarous treatment. Before leaving for Audubon, Bischoff steadfastly denied receipt of the letter, or that he had heard of the woman since they separated.

Police there yesterday also quizzed New York Plain Clothes Man Andrew J. McLaughlin, just returned from a cruise to Bermuda, who records showed had arrested the woman in 1923 on the charge on which she went to the Bedford Reformatory. Upon his arrival he was taken to headquarters.

Dapper, seemingly care free, McLaughlin said: "Why, I didn't even remember the arrest of the woman."

An Associated Press dispatch said he emerged smilingly from the quiz of the police commissioner and members of the district attorney's staff and said he would return to regular duty.

Police there also questioned Cassie Blayton, who was arrested by New York detectives in Erie, Pa., yesterday in a boarding house after she was said to have wired them for money to go to New York so she could appear as a witness in the case. Her connection was not revealed, although she was said to have been a friend of the slain woman.

In the round-up in the metropolitan area Jersey City police arrested Charles "Vannie" Higgins, an alleged Manhattan racketeer, who, with many others, had been mentioned in the case. Many minor charges were placed against him and he finally was released on $2,250 bail. Police declined to state his exact connection with the case.

A motive still was lacking for the murder of the woman, whose body, with a knotted clothesline around the neck, was found last Thursday after it had been dumped over a cliff in Van Courtland Park in the Bronx there. The previous Friday she had appeared before Irving Ben Cooper, handling vice phases of the appellate court inquiry into the city magistracy, offering to reveal a "frame up." He had urged her to dig up further data to better corroborate her story. He did not see her alive again.

Aside from police activity in working on the clew that enemies had murdered the woman, they also sought to learn what became of her $2,000 coat and her missing jewelry as a possible motive of an unpremeditated slaying by thieves.

B. & O.'s Income Drops 25 Per Cent

Railway's Net Is Reported at $21,423,770 for Last Year.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. today reported for 1930 net income available for dividends and other corporate purposes amounting to $21,423,770, a decrease of 25.53 per cent from $28,767,908 for 1929.

Net for 1930 was equal, after payment of preferred dividends, to $7.44 a share on the common stock.

During the year, the report said, the company concluded the purchase of about 98 per cent of the stock of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway Co. and about 99 per cent of the stock of the Buffalo & Susquehanna. The company also enlarged its investment in the Reading Co. so that, as of December 31, it held about 40 per cent of the stock of that company.

Store Burglar Steals $15 Pistol.

Elmer Jenkins, proprietor of a grocery store on U street, near Fifteenth street northwest, yesterday reported to police that his store was entered by cutting a panel from the rear door and a revolver valued at $15 was stolen. Although the place was ransacked, nothing else was missing, he said.

FESTIVAL OF LOTS OBSERVANCE BEGUN BY DISTRICT JEWS

New Torah Is Presented in Memory of the Late Mrs. Blumenthal.

CELEBRATION IS SLATED TO CONTINUE ALL WEEK

Play Presenting Historical Background of Purim Set for Tomorrow.

Celebration in synagogues, homes and clubs began yesterday in recognition of Purim or the festival of the lots. The observance will continue all this week.

An impressive ceremony was held yesterday afternoon at the Ohav Sholom Congregation in connection with the presentation of a new Torah in memory of the late Mrs. Dora Blumenthal. This ceremony started with a procession shortly after noon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Alloy, 501 Thirteenth street northeast, to the late home of Mrs. Blumenthal, 1104 Fifth street northwest. B. L. Joffe bought the honor of bringing the Torah to the synagogue.

The Torah was the gift of the Ladies' Auxiliary Society of the congregation. It was received by Louis Rosenberg, president of the congregation. Eight other Torahs that had been presented to the congregation in the past figured in the ceremony. The honor of bearing them was bought by various members of the congregation.

Placed in Ark.

As the eight old Torahs were placed in the ark of the synagogue, Hebrew melodies were played by the Nat Lieberman Band and sung by Cantor A. Kalmus, of Brooklyn, formerly of the local congregation. Members of the ladies' auxiliary, carrying lighted candles, took part in the ceremony.

Rabbi J. T. Loeb, of the congregation, made the principal address. Other addresses were made by Rabbi George Silverstone, Rabbi M. A. Horwitz, Rabbi Solomon Metz, Rabbi M. Dubroff and Milton B. Zeiler, vice president of the congregation.

Future Is Outlined.

Dr. Chaim Zhitlovsky spote at the Jewish Community Center last night on the subject of "The Future of Jews in America." The Sixth Street Synagogue held a Purim for children yesterday afternoon. Club groups of the Jewish Community Center will present a program at the center tomorrow night commemorative of the Book of Esther.

A play, presenting the historic background of Purim, will be presented at the Jewish Community Center tomorrow night. It is called "A Daughter of Her People." The program at the center will be followed by a reception and dance.

Soldier Held on Charge Of Shooting His Wife

Porter Umbler, Negro soldier stationed at Fort Humphreys, Va., was arrested last night on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Tenth Precinct police arrested him in a house on Hanover street, near North Capitol street, an hour after he is alleged to have shot his wife.

The soldier, police said, went to a house on Fairmont street near Sherman avenue northwest, last night, and after intimidating his wife, Mrs. Edna Umbler, shot her in the right arm. Police say he ran from the house, commandeered a cab, and was driven to the Hanover street house, where police found him. The wife was treated at Garfield Hospital.

TWO NEW STATUES HONOR PREACHERS IN HALL OF FAME

California Enters Bronzes of Thomas Starr King and Junipero Serra.

PRESENTATION MADE BY SENATOR JOHNSON

Secretary Wilbur Accepts for Government and Reads Hoover Message.

Two new statues adorn Statuary Hall today. One is of Junipero Serra, the other of Thomas Starr King—two men who through oratory and preaching of the Gospel carved an immortal place for themselves in the history of California.

The statues were informally unveiled at a fitting ceremony yesterday afternoon which was attended by approximately 500 persons. Flags of the United States draped the bronze memorials until they were drawn aside to the accompaniment of applause and the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the Marine Band.

The statue of King was undraped by his grandson, Thomas Starr King, a lieutenant commander in the United States Navy. The statue of Serra was unveiled by Representative Florence Prag Kahn, of California.

Wilbur Receives Statues.

The memorials were received on behalf of the United States Government by Secretary Wilbur, who represented President Hoover at the ceremony and read a brief message from the President.

The statues were formally presented by Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California. An address on Serra was made by Isidore B. Dockweiler. He traced the work of Serra from the time he went to California and supplied a detailed historical account of the development of missions by the Franciscan.

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, of California, eulogized the memory of King. He told of how this preacher blazed the trail that led to the linking of California with the Union. He also paid tribute to King's deeds as a health campaigner.

Tributes to Both Men.

Brief tributes to both men were paid by Mrs. William Elmer Evans and Representative Arthur M. Free, of California. This was followed by the playing of "I Love You, California," by the Marine Band. The favorite music of King and Serra was played at the beginning of the ceremony.

The invocation was given by Bishop Thomas Shahan. The Rev. Ulysses Grant Pierce, pastor of the Unitarian Church, gave the benediction. Miss Grace S. Stoermer, secretary of the California commission, presided at the exercises.

The statue of Serra was sculptured by Ettore Cadorin, of Santa Barbara, Calif. The statue of King was the work of Haig Patigan, of San Francisco.

Holliday Will Speak To Advertising Club

Samuel N. Holliday, in charge of national copy for the General Outdoor Advertising Co., New York City, will address the Advertising Club of Washington at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the National Press Club auditorium.

Before assuming his present duties Mr. Holliday, connected with the company for 15 years, was in charge of sales promotion and later assistant to the president of the organization. An entertainer from a Washington night club will appear in several numbers.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

YOUR CAN COMPANY AND MINE.

To the Stockholders of the American Can Co.:

The net earnings of your company during the year 1930 were $27,883,940.63. Your company's sales were slightly larger than in 1929 and larger than in any previous year.

Business conditions and prospects for 1931 do not invite prophecy, but we do not consider them discouraging. We expect substantial business for your company.

Your organization has again outdone its record for industry, loyalty and efficiency, and it is a source of pleasure and pride to your management.

H. W. PHELPS, President.

* * * *

DEAR Mr. Phelps: I wish you could know what a kick it given me when you refer to this big corporation as my company. I bought only a few shares a month or so back and I did not entertain the faintest hope that anybody would even notice it, to say nothing of the president of the company himself and in person.

* * * *

Let me just run over your letter again: "Your company's sales were slightly larger than in 1929." That's what it says and I can tell you this realization that it is my company makes me feel pretty important.

* * * *

On the level, Mr. Phelps, I am the most tin can conscious man in the country at the moment. As I read over your wonderful communication I say to myself, "Elmer, you and men like you make possible the tin cans of America! You are one of the men behind the canning industry."

* * * *

It makes me feel that at last I amount to something. I am a tin can creator and my influence is felt in millions of American homes, hotels, restaurants, dining cars and automats. Whenever a housewife opens a can of tomatoes in this great land of ours I feel that I am with her in spirit. Wherever and whenever a maid opens a can of succotash, string beans or spinach she is unconsciously benefiting through the foresight, industry and energy of men like you and like me, Mr. Phelps. Think of it, as millions of people open cans of tomato soup this very day in the cities, the towns, the villages and the hamlets, from the rock-bound coast of Maine to the shores of sunny California, they are doing something which I have helped in my modest way to make possible!

* * * *

Never again will I be able to visit a grocery store without looking with satisfaction at the rows upon rows of canned pineapple, canned baked beans, canned apple sauce; canned spaghetti, canned milk and canned whatnots and thinking, "You, Elmer Twitchell, by your loyalty, industry and efficiency helped make this thing possible!"

* * * *

WHAT a glamorous story there is behind the ultimate sale of a single can of soup, Mr. Phelps! First, the hardy prospector roaming the hills in search of tin! Then the striking of a rich stake after years of struggle and privation! Then the work down deep in the tin mines! Then the carting of the tin to the mills, the smelting (if they don't smelt tin, Mr. Phelps, you will forgive me, and as a stockholder I am in favor of smelting it), the rolling in tin sheets and finally the construction, as if by magic, of one of the greatest benefactions of modern civilization—the completed tin can!

* * * *

The completed Elmer Twitchell tin can, in a sense, Mr. Phelps. Well, it's that sort of thing that makes me feel I have not lived in vain, and I want to thank you again for your fine letter bringing this all home to me.

* * * *

Our organization can continue to count on my industry, loyalty and efficiency. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and make this the biggest tin can year in history.

Yours very sincerely,
ELMER TWITCHELL, Stockholder.

Jesus' Forgiving Love Is Urged as Example

Rev. H. A. Kester Pleads for Congregation to Cast Out Revenge.

THE REV. H. A. KESTER.

The Rev. H. A. Kester, pastor of the Congress Street Methodist Protestant Church, Thirty-first street between M and N streets northwest, delivered a sermon yesterday morning at the church on the subject, "Father, Forgive Them," taking Luke xxiii:24 as his text.

He said in part:

"Deathbed words, especially of our loved one, are always treasured. They are often recalled in memory. The dying words of our Lord are counted among the most precious legacies which He has left His church.

"As we gather around the Communion Table and look up into the face of the Lord, hanging on the cross. He speaks for the first time. We listen; is it a wail or a shriek of agony? Nay, but a prayer. And what a prayer it was. No murmuring. Is he praying for Himself to stop the enemies or hasten death? If we were in His place no doubt that would have been our prayer. We would have thought of ourselves. Like Elijah, we would have cried, 'It is enough.' Was it a prayer of vengeance? Like David asking God to smite His enemies? Nay, but a prayer of forgiveness. Abel's blood cried out to heaven against his brother Cain, but Jesus' blood pleads forgiveness.

"This love was something strange and new in the world. It is still strange and new, not only in the world, but within the church. As if it were a lesson too hard to learn. It can be learned. Stephen learned it. That is the reason amid the stones he could say, 'Lay not this sin to their charge.' St. James the Less, Paul, John Huss and thousands of others have learned the lesson and so can you and I.

"Many carry some wrong in the memory of their heart, brood over it, plot revenge, ready to repay evil for evil and remain away from the Lord's Table for years because they are unwilling to forgive.

"As we look to Him, who amid a thousand tortures of the cross, praying for His enemies may we more earnestly strive to follow His noble example."

NEW REPTILE HOUSE DRAWS ZOO CROWDS

Thousands Jam Building, Despite Rain; Attendance Record Mounts.

The new reptile house at the National Zoological Park proved its power as one of the greatest drawing cards of the institution on its opening day, Saturday, and throughout yesterday.

Despite the rain and clouds yesterday, the zoo fans, who had flocked to the building Saturday, kept coming in constant streams, jamming the building almost to capacity throughout the day. There is some chance that the record for attendance, set when 40,000 persons came out to visit the zoo's gorilla upon his first appearance, may be broken.

So heavy did traffic become Saturday that extra park policemen were placed on duty to direct moving automobiles and to superintend parking. There were three placed near the reptile house to keep things moving smoothly.

Throughout the two days there were solid lines of visitors in front of each exhibit, for the majority of the time they were packed three deep before the cages. Men, women and children filed in and out of the building throughout the period, proving the contention of Dr. William M. Mann, director, that the new $250,000 house would be the most popular building at the zoo.

The small aquarium exhibits, the huge rock python and the alligator gardens appeared to be most popular.

14 RED FOES PUT ON TRIAL IN RUSSIA

successful. The charges in this respect were almost identical with those against Ramzin and his associates.

As in the Ramzin affair, these defendants confessed and pleaded guilty. The "trial," hence, it was anticipated, will be a repetition of the same sort of testimony as in the Ramzin trial, with the defendants confessing appealing for leniency.

Death Penalty Reduced.

Ramzin and his associates were sentenced to death originally, but their sentences were quickly reduced to prison terms, and these were again cut, until none of the engineers was given more than ten years imprisonment.

The fourteen men on trial are Vladimir Groman, 56, described as the leader, a noted economist and member of the presidium of the state planning commission; Vasily Sher, 47, one of the managers of the state bank; Nicholas Sukhanov, economist, 48; Michael Yakubovich, 39, formerly assistant chief of the supply section of the trade commissariat; Ulexander Finn-Entoayevsky, 58, professor of political economy; Isaac Rubin, professor of political economy; Abraham Ginsburg, 52, member of the supreme council of national economy; Aron Sokolovsky, 47, Lazar Zalkind, 45, and Ivan Volkov, 47, all members of the supreme council of national economy; Ivan Petunin, 46, of the managing board of the central cooperatives; Boris Beriatsky, 41, of the state bank; Vladimir Ikov, 49, journalist, and Moses Teitelbaum, 54, of the trade commissariat.

There were 70 Soviet and foreign newspapermen on hand to report the trial. The court adjourned at 11 p. m., after the reading of the 110-page indictment. It will convene at 10 p. m. tomorrow.

PLANS ARE PUSHED FOR GIANT FESTIVAL

Cast of 300, Chorus of 150 and Dancing Group Are to Be Featured.

Elaborate preparations of far-reaching interest and importance are now under way for the Festival of Nations to be presented during cherry blossom time here under auspices of the Girl Scouts of the District of Columbia. The feature will be a demonstration of international good will, in the form of a great spectacle comprising music, dancing and drama based upon the culture and art of the nations of the world, notably our neighbor nations, Canada and Mexico, and two far-away nations, Czechoslovakia and Japan.

With a cast of 300, a chorus of 150 and a dancing group of 50 Washington girls, active preparations for the festival are being rushed by many committees, following an organization meeting of all groups Friday night at Carlton Hotel, which was attended by more than 300.

Girl Scouts will have an important share in the presentation of the festival story, which deals with the idealism of youth in its friendliness and tolerance toward all mankind, combining many of the ideals embodied in the work and aims of the Girl Scouts themselves. The festival will continue an entire week, from Monday night, April 27, to Saturday night, May 2, and will be staged in Constitution Hall.

Plans for the event were outlined Friday night by Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the executive committee; Mrs. B. Frank Cheatham, acting commissioner of the Girl Scouts of the District; Chalmers B. Fithian, Frank Duffield, representing the Chicago firm of Thearle & Duffield, and Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, who is in charge of the work of the captains and junior captains.

The captains, most of whom were present Friday night include Mrs. Gregg C. Birdsall, Mrs. Reuben Bitler, Mrs. Henry Clay Carpenter, Mrs. Harry N. Cootes, Miss Jane Crosby, Mrs. Lillian Cutlip, Mrs. Kensett Daniel, Mrs. Macdonald Douglass, Mrs. Charles B. Drake, Mrs. Randall T. Elliott, Mrs. Charles R. Emrich, Mrs. Marie M. Forrest, Mrs. John E. Fowler, Mrs. Benjamin E. Fuller, Miss Betty Griffin, Mrs. Helen Halloran, Mrs. Borden Harriman, Miss Jeannette Hume, Mrs. Clyde Kelly, Mrs. Edwin G. Kintner, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, jr., Mrs. Helen Martin, Mrs. Julie J. Mason, Mrs. George C. Minnegerode, Mrs John W. Morse, Miss Josephine Jechham, Miss Elizabeth Persons, Mrs. Edwin T. Pollock, Mrs. Robert A. Theobald, Mrs. Howe Totten, Mrs. P. E. Wallace, Mrs. William Wheatley, Mrs. Mary G. Whiteman, Mrs. W. B. Willard, Mrs. Wayne Wirgman and Mrs. Franklin Zanzinger.

Wounded Grocer Is "Doing Nicely"

Man Shot in Hip by Robber Improving as Police Hunt Assailant.

John J. Gormley, 50 years old, proprietor of a grocery store at 1058 Jefferson street northwest, who was shot through the right hip Saturday night by a colored man who attempted to rob him, was reported to be "doing nicely" yesterday at Georgetown Hospital, where he was taken following the shooting.

According to police, Gormley was shot from the rear as he was waiting on the colored man, who he supposed to be a customer. The man entered the store shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night. The bullet struck Gormley in the right thigh, and before he could turn around, the colored man had fled.

Police are searching for the assailant and a quick arrest is expected.

Woman Averts Robbery By Call to Absent Mate

Accosted by a colored man who demanded her money as she was putting her automobile in the garage in the rear of her home early yesterday, Mrs. Betty Shapiro, 25, of 1400 North Capitol street, averted serious consequences by her quick thinking.

As the man approached her and demanded money, she calmly called to her husband and started walking toward the house. The colored man started to follow her, then turned and fled. In reporting the incident to police, Mrs. Shapiro declared her husband was not in the house at the time.

Thief Gets Clothing and Jewelry.

Miss Dorothy Kerabell, of 1412 Floral street northwest, yesterday reported to police that her home was entered and jewelry and wearing apparel valued at more than $160 stolen. Entrance was gained by forcing open a rear door, she said.

CURB MART PASSES BEST WEEK OF 1931

Reaction Later Pulls Few Shares Down From High Levels.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Curb stocks responded readily to the best buying of the year last week, although reactionary tendencies on Friday and Saturday pulled many of the leaders down from their highs.

Trading was active, especially on Thursday when sales crossed the million share mark for the first time this year. Utilities moved briskly while the rise was at its height, with particularly vigorous demonstrations in United Light "A" and Electric Bond & Share. The rally in the latter was tempered somewhat by forecasts of smaller 1930 earnings for its important client company, American & Foreign Power.

Associated Gas issues came strongly to the fore with the announcement that the holding corporation had completed payment, estimated at $60,000,000, for acquisitions made in this State nearly two years ago. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore was also prominent in the advance.

Buying since December has reduced the floating supplies of many stocks whose market is thin at best, and this situation is being reflected in some wide moves. A. O. Smith climbed more than 30 points after the appearance of its six months' earnings statement. Mead Johnson was again favored. Tubize Chatillon was rushed up several points but lost its rise. Deere likewise found support. Aircraft stocks were active.

Oils continued dull and heavy, but considerable attention was given the investment trust group which, with the petroleum shares, had been neglected. The advances in the general market have obviously benefited the portfolios of the trusts and advances of the week cut into the discounts at which many have been selling.

New Financial Era Is Seen by Muller

Curb Exchange President Predicts Sound Basis of Stabilization.

New York, March 1 (A.P.).—Deflation has run so far it is "probably safe" to anticipate better conditions, at least to the extent of a sound basis for stabilization in 1931, said William S. Muller, president of the New York Curb Exchange, in his annual report for 1930, issued today.

"The widespread material losses that the downward swing of the business and financial cycle brought during 1930 should mark a new era in financial and industrial operations," the report asserted.

"All nations have variously enjoyed good and bad times in their history, as in ours, but the cyclical changes in the United States rest on a different foundation than elsewhere throughout the world. The cycle of progress as we know it here obtains its impulse from certain human factors that are more prominent in this country."

Reading's Net Income Decreases $7,046,113

Philadelphia, March 1 (A.P.).—Net income of the Reading Co. in 1930 showed decrease of $7,046,113, as compared with the preceding year. The annual report was made public tonight.

The net income last year was $8,462,626, against $15,508,740 in 1929. Gross income fell off $6,583,859, the figures being $17,566,005 last year against $24,149,864 in 1929. The income balance transferred to profit and loss was given as $8,420,170, compared with $6,558,202 in 1929, an increase of $1,868,968.

Seven in Crew Drown As Cargo Vessel Sinks

Gijon, Spain, March 1 (A.P.).—The cargo boat Commerce, bound from Luarca with a cargo of pine, sank with its crew of seven men off Cape Fena yesterday in a furious gale.

The steamer Maria made futile efforts to rescue the men. All were drowned.
